SIR ROGER DENIES BRIBE

Casement, on Stand in His Own Defence, Says Germany Didn't Finance the Irish Rebellion

By International News Service.

London, June 28.—Taking the stand in his own defence, Sir Roger Casement, who is on trial on the charge of high treason, denied today that the Irish rebellion had been inspired, directed or financed by Germany. Sir Roger declared it was purely an Irish movement.

The court overruled the motion to quash the indictment on the ground that the offense was committed outside the realm of King George.

When the court convened Alexander Sullivan, K. C., chief of counsel for Casement, asked that Professor J. H. Morgan be allowed to conduct the proceedings because the long arguments of yesterday had overtaxed his voice. The court demurred at first but agreed to hear Professor Morgan as amicus curiae.

The most dramatic moment of the trial came when Sir Roger rose to make his statement to the court.

"I never sold myself to any man or foreign government," said the prisoner. "Only Irish money was used to further the cause of Ireland."

Casement's statement was read from a long typewritten document after permission had been given by the Lord Chief Justice. He showed considerable emotion when he read the passages, denying that he had ever advised Irishmen to fight for Germany or Turkey.

"I always claimed an Irishman had no right to fight for any country but Ireland," declared the defendant. Casement admitted that money had been offered to him in Germany, but said that he refused it. In conclusion the prisoner said:

"I left Germany poorer than when I entered the country. Money I can always obtain from my countrymen, and I am not ashamed to acknowledge the debt of gratitude. I trust, gentlemen of the jury, I have made my statement clearly and emphatically enough for you all and for even my bitterest enemy to comprehend that the man, who, in newspapers, has been 'only another Irish traitor' may be a gentleman."

After the statement had been read, Mr. Sullivan addressed the court, in behalf of the defence.

BATTERY D OFF FOR BORDER

Great Crowd Cheers Militiamen as They Depart from Framingham for Service in Texas.

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Whitney, Framingham, June 28.—With the cheers of thousands ringing in their ears, Battery D, the last unit of the Massachusetts militia to leave for the border, entrained at 2o'clock this afternoon.

Prior to their departure the cavalry and the other batteries of the infantry had broken camp, entrained ad started on their long journey.

Scenes not unlike those that have marked the departure of the various units of the troops were enacted today. The largest crowd that has visited the camp to witness the departure of the troops was present today to cheer the boys good-bye.

Several hundred rookies were sent to the rifle range in Wakefield for target practice today.

Thomas Mullins of No. 101 Canterbury street, Worcester, employed by a contractor to return militia horses not needed at the front to their owners, was taken to the Framingham Hospital early today suffering from several broken ribs as a result of being struck by an electric car in Union avenue. Two horses he had in charge were injured.

The bursting of a water main in one of the regimental streets drenched many of the rookies.

BROOKLINE BOY IS KILLED BY TRUCK

Thomas Flemming, five, son of Patrolman Patrick Flemming of the Brookline police, was killed by a motor truck while playing in front of his home at No. 172 High street, Brookline, this afternoon. The truck is owned by the Republic Motor Company of Commonwealth avenue and was driven by William H. Nable of West Newton street, South End. Nable rushed the boy to the Peter Bent Hospital, but he was dead when he reached there.

GENERAL MILES' SON GETS COMMISSION

New York, June 28.—Major-General O'Ryan ordered the reorganization of the Sixty-fifth Infantry Regiment of Buffalo into a heavy field artillery regiment. Captain Daniel W. Hand of the United States field artillery has been placed in command of the regiment as colonel, and Captain Miles, son of Lieutenant-General Nelson A. Miles, U. S. A., retired, will be lieutenant-colonel. General Miles recently offered the services of his son to Governor McCall of Massachusetts for the Bay State militia.

INDIANS WANT TO ENLIST IN MILITIA

Washington, June 28.—Fifteen hundred Sioux Indians in South Dakota have offered to enlist in the Militia service of the United States in the Mexican emergency. The offer came in a letter to Senator Johnson of North Dakota, who today notified Secretary of War Baker.

KAISER'S U-BOAT OFF CAPE, REPORT

Boston wireless stations today picked up a radiogram stating that the German submarine supposed to be on its way to Boston from Spain had been sighted off Provincetown. The official observer of the Boston Chamber of Commerce at Highland Light made no mention of it in his report. At the Navy Yard it was learned that American submarines were practising in that vicinity and there was a possibility that any submarine sighted might be an American boat.

GEN. BARRY ASSIGNS WESTERN TROOPS

Chicago, June 28.—General T. H. Barry, commander of the Central Department, U. S. A., today ordered the following assignments of Central Western National Guard units:

Illinois Cavalry to Brownsville, Texas; all other Illinois troops to San Antonio; Kansas troops to Eagle Pass, Texas; Missouri troops to Laredo, Texas; Wisconsin troops to San Antonio.

FELIX DIAZ WILL JOIN CARRANZA

By International News Service.

Washington, June 28.—Felix Diaz, nephew of the old dictator, Porfirio Diaz of Mexico, will support General Carranza if the United States declares war, according to information which has reached the Department of Justice, it was stated at Attorney-General Gregory's office today. Diaz has been especially friendly toward the United States during the period, in which he has been fomenting a revolution designed to place the old Cientifico party in a dominant position in Mexico, but the new information at hand is that he has decided to throw in his lot with Carranza in order that Mexico may show a united front to any invader.

This means, according to the Department of Justice, that war munitions, which Diaz has been accumulating from American sources during the last two years may be used against United States troops. It is understood that Diaz has not yet been able to remove all his munitions from this country, but will attempt to get them exported through Cuban agents.

WILSON'S ADVISERS THINK THERE IS HOPE CARRANZA WILL GIVE IN

Washington, June 28.—An immediate declaration that a state of war exists between the United States and Mexico was demanded in the House today by "Uncle Joe" Cannon. The former Speaker declared: "The status in Mexico should be recognized at once." He asserted that the Republicans in the House would support legislation to clarify the situation. "The situation calls for action by Congress," he said, "and Congress should act at once. A state of war exists between this country and Mexico. It has existed for months. If we had recognized it months ago we would not now be in the position which we are in."

"Doesn't the gentleman think," interrupted Representative Eagle of Texas, "that the sooner we say so in plain words, and go in there and clean up, the better we will be off?" "That is the very thing I'm trying to say, replied Cannon.

Washington, June 28.—Be it for peace or war, Carranza must decide and make his decision known by tomorrow noon. That is President Wilson's time limit.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois, the Democratic whip, said today, after a conference with the President, that the latter will not wait beyond noon tomorrow for Carranza to act.

While the result still hangs in the balance strong hints developed today that Carranza may change his mind from his original and officially announced intention of refusing the administration's demands for release of the Carrizal prisoners.

While the Mexicans are massing troops in Chihuahua and the United States is rushing its militia toward the border, to give freer movement to the regulars, strong arguments are being applied to Carranza to reverse his first brusque decision.

Late Mexico Bulletins

Nogales, Ariz., June 28.—Mexican troops crossed the international boundary fifteen miles west of Nogales late last night, but were fired upon by American soldiers and retreated into Mexico. The Carranzistas did not return the fire, but their commander later filed a protest, stating that his men had been attacked while on their own territory.

When the situation was explained, the Mexican leader informed Major William Brooke that he would prevent further trespass.

Washington, June 28.—The Mexican government through Ambassador Designate Arredondo today filed with the State Department charges that a column of 3,000 American soldiers had captured and maltreated 300 Mexican civilians at La Cruz, Chihuahua.

The note says that the Americans were soldiers ordered northward by General Pershing. "When they left San Geronimo for Valli they committed all kinds of outrages," Arredondo stated.

RENEW PRESSURE ON CARRANZA.

One hint of a change of front by the Constitutionalist First Chief came today from Postmaster-General Burleson. This intimation from a member of the Cabinet brought eager request that he give some idea of the source of his information, but Mr. Burleson would go no farther.

At the same time it became known that the Latin-American diplomats here were renewing their pressure upon Carranza to meet the demands of the United States and thus avert war.

5,486 BAY STATE TROOPS ON WAY.

Camp Whitney, Framingham, June 28.—Figures announced for the first time late this afternoon show that Massachusetts has contributed 5,486 officers and men to the Mexican campaign, the largest number of soldiers that any State has furnished.

American Reporters Go to Front with the Troops

A corps of staff reporters of the Boston AMERICAN accompany the Massachusetts troops to the Mexican campaign. Bert Ford, Willard H. Davis, Harry Benwell and others will keep the readers of the Boston AMERICAN informed with up-to-the-minute, illustrated accounts of the doings of the Massachusetts troops. Other correspondents will accompany the troops from other New England States. If you have soldier relatives or friends you can keep posted on their doings by reading the Boston AMERICAN. The stories of the progress of the Massachusetts militia today will be found on Page 3.

CARRANZA GIVEN UNTIL NOON TOMORROW TO DECIDE ISSUE OF PEACE OR WAR

REPORT FIRST CHIEF MAY YIELD TO THE U. S.

Senator Lewis, who announced after his conference with the President that tomorrow noon was the President's time limit for action by Carranza, also said that the administration understood through official channels that Carranza was conferring with Latin-American diplomats in Mexico City.

MAY FREE CAPTIVES.

According to Senator Lewis, the majority of the Latin-American representatives are counseling Carranza to admit that General Trevino went too far in carrying out his instructions when he ordered Gomez to attack the Tenth Cavalry troopers.

Carranza has been told that even if, as he claims, the Americans were the aggressors, a battle should have been avoided.

The diplomats are also, it is said, urging an immediate compliance with the United States' demand for the release of the prisoners now in Chihuahua.

Senator Lewis said that Carranza is anxious to secure the support of the Latin-American nations in dealing with the crisis. Hence his conference with their representatives in Mexico City.

Senator Lewis said that there was no information as to what effect this advice was having on Carranza, but that the President hoped to receive the reply tonight. In any event, Senator Lewis said, the President will not wait beyond noon tomorrow for Carranza to act. When he goes to Congress the President simply will place all of the facts before that body and let it decide what is to be done, Senator Lewis said.

The State Department today received confirmation of the fact that Carranza was investigating the incidents in connection with the Carrizal fight. It is because of this, Consul-General Rodgers wired, that the reply to Sunday's ultimatum was held up, but he reports that it will undoubtedly reach him today.

State Department and White House officials felt certain this afternoon that the reply would be well in the hands of the President before noon tomorrow, although they say they have as yet no intimation of its contents.

As indicating that the pressure at least seemed to be having some effect, was the declaration by the Mexican embassy officials that "there might be delay" in sending the reply to Sunday's ultimatum to this city.

Yesterday the embassy notified Dr. Calderon, the spokesman of the Latin-American diplomats, that the American demand for the release of the captured prisoners had been emphatically refused.

Calderon immediately united with his colleagues in another series of telegrams to Mexico City, pointing out that these troopers could not be considered prisoners of war, inasmuch as war had not yet been declared, and urging him to consider

The President had before him today the report of Captain L. S. Morey of K Troop of the Tenth Cavalry, which was received overnight from General Pershing.

Meanwhile the work of outfitting the militia who are being rushed to the border was being hastened by the War Department. Secretary Baker said today that the quartermaster's department will have complete supplies of every kind—including badly needed machine guns—ready for the units when they reach their stations.

He refused to permit publication of any of the details of the distribution, but it was admitted that by Saturday morning every vulnerable spot on the border through which a serious raid might be attempted will be guarded.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels ag...today denied that orders had been issued for the use of the Atlantic battleship fleet as a blockading squadron.

This work will be taken over by the twenty cutters of the coast guard service and by the light-draught vessels of the fleet.

Headquarters will be maintained at Galveston and as soon as a warlike move is ordered control of the revenue cutters will pass to the navy and they will take up the stations that already have been agreed on.

Today's News in Mexican Crisis

The chief new developments in the Mexican situation today were:

1—Carranza's hostile attitude is further emphasized by a public speech by the First Chief at Mexico City, saying that the Constitutionalist (Carranza) soldiers were "fulfilling their duty" by repulsing the Americans at Carrizal after the American punitive expedition advanced when the last Carranza note gave warning that any such advance would meet with force.

2—Both countries are rushing war plans. Increased censorship of military news along the border gives further indication of expected activity. At Columbus, N. M., for example, five censors are now on duty where one has been sufficient. Four Mexican armies, totalling 50,000 men, of whom 30,000 are cavalry, are massed in border State of Chihuahua, where Pershing's force is. The Carranzistas have artillery and hold important strategic bases for either repulse or attack.

3—Pending an expected break American officials are utilizing every minute of delay in rushing militia to the border. Pennsylvania and District of Columbia units to the number of 5,000 men are ordered to El Paso, Tex., and Bisbee, Ariz., respectively. New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut units not already underway were ordered to start today, Maine and Rhode Island tomorrow and one Maryland regiment Friday.

4—Mexicans in another raid on United States soil raided William Parker's ranch, thirty-five miles southwest of Hachita, N. M., murdered Parker and his bride of five months and drove away their cattle. American cavalry and citizens' posse started in pursuit, with orders to cross the border if necessary to get the raiders.

CENSORSHIP TIGHTENS IN EFFORT TO HIDE WAR PLANS ON THE BORDER

By WALLACE E. SMITH,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

El Paso, Texas, June 23.—The censorship began to close in on preparations for the planned expedition in Mexico by way of Juarez, and detailed accounts of troop movements were shielded with military secrecy.

At the same time it became known that the officials of the American camp here have already named the censorship staff that will delete the reports of the correspondents on the border. At Columbus, N. M., there were today five censors, where one was formerly sufficient to pass all reports. The tightening of information sources was taken as a certain indication that speedy action was contemplated.

Army officers here are certain that it will be their task to fight their way to Chihuahua City and secure the release of the American troopers there, and they are eager for the task.

HIDE TROOP MOVEMENTS.

The rigors of censorship will be especially hard on the "folks back home." It is upon militia movements that the mailed fist of censorship first began to close.

Information regarding disposition of these bodies was refused, although it is known that all plans for the pushing of the various guardsmen organizations had been made. It was expected that soon the first regiments from the East would be brought to their posts in the El Paso district and at other points along the border.

It is no secret that the Mexican de facto government has in operation a splendid system of espionage. The duties of spies may be more easily comprehended when it is stated that fully half of El Paso's population is made up of Mexicans, and to the other border towns the proportion is even more overwhelming.

Somewhere along the border points, army officers are certain, there is a Mexican wireless in constant communication with the Mexican side. In fact, government operators have "listened in" on the messages sent from some mysterious station in which military locations were revealed and revealed accurately.

If the American army has lookout stations on the tops of big buildings and the high mountain places behind El Paso the Mexican government is no less represented. While the Americans are surveying the American operations and the various camps about the city.

FLASHED NEWS OF MARCH.

Thus the news of the march of the American command last week when it was ordered out for a practice march was flashed to Mexico almost as soon as the move started. By the time the troopers had assembled and received the order to march the news was already in Juarez and Juarez machine gun squad and civil guard was rushed to the International bridge approaches.

Every hour's delay in the order to move on Juarez is giving the Mexicans an opportunity to strengthen their forces. From Mexico City today came reports that 10,000 young Mexicans had asked Carranza to give them arms to fight against the hated Gringoes. Refugees from the interior bring stories that 50,000 Mexicans, a great proportion of them well equipped cavalry, are concentrated at Villa Ahumada to repel the American advance.

General Trevino, in Chihuahua City, reported to War Minister Obregon that General Pershing was retreating and that the Carranzistas have occupied the former American camps at Bachimba and Geronimo. "If Pershing attempts to re-enter we will do what we did at Carrizal," Trevino said. "The American force in its new movement went north as our first order ordered."

Thus the Mexican official reports prepare the news of troops movement for the favorable consumption of the people. All through Mexico has gone a dumbyant call to arms, which concludes:

"No fighting will be necessary. Our brave troops will simply march northward, brushing the Gringoes aside, until our glorious tri-color floats from the dome of the capitol at Washington.

"It will be a battle between the Mexican Eagle and the American Eagle and we will strip the arrows from the latter's claws and use them to scratch the Stars and Stripes from the Gringoes' banners."

In Chihuahua City inspired pamphleteers are dropping for the time their work of anti-American agitation to write long, imaginative accounts of events on this side of the Rio Grande. These reports are published on Carranzista presses and spread broadcast.

One of them declares that President Wilson and his cabinet have abandoned Washington and, guarded by a small detachment of soldiers and policemen, are fleeing for Canada. Another states that the Juarez commander informed General Bell at Fort Bliss that unless the American batteries were removed from El Paso the Mexicans would shell the town. The pamphlet goes on to relate how General Bell at first refused to comply with this command and how he quickly changed his mind when the first well directed shell of the Mexican guns dropped on the roof of the El Paso du Norte Hotel.

BAY STATE TROOPS GRUMBLE AT SNAIL'S PACE ON WAY TO THE BORDER

SWELTER IN HOT TRAINS

BAY STATE WOMEN DEMONSTRATE REAL PREPAREDNESS AT DEPARTURE OF TROOPS FROM FRAMINGHAM

REFUSAL TO TAKE OATH JEERED

By BERT FORD.

Aboard Bay State Brigade Troop Train en route to El Paso: Cleveland, O., June 28.—The brigade section of the Ninth Regiment, the first by designation but the last of the three Ninth sections to reach here, pulled into Cleveland at 8 o'clock this morning. The 650 miles were covered in thirty-two hours.

The second and third sections are ahead of us. A shift in the weather brought a cool night and the first comfortable sleep of the trip thus far. Everybody was happy this morning.

Private Mealey of South Boston, member of A Company, gave the outfit a scare last night. He was bitten by a dog at the Framingham camp last Sunday. Last night he was seized with cramps and his comrades, fearing rabies, summoned Chaplain O'Connor and Major Fred L. Bogan. They found that Private Mealey had eaten something which did not agree with him and he reported for mess today as chipper as ever.

The brigade section was the first to start, but a broken coupling eighteen miles from Albany and a series of delays soon enabled the other two sections to roll ahead. Last night they were half-way to Buffalo when the first section pulled into Syracuse, where the Italian population turned out in droves to cheer.

CHEERED BY CROWDS.

There was a holiday of two hours at Rensselaer, when two regiments of New York militia were entraining for Camp Beekman. A crowd sent them away. A tattoo was tattooed on locomotive whistles.

At the yards and roundhouses of the New York Central 'n West Albany bedlam reigned. Every locomotive in the yard screeched at once and kept at it, and there were a few score of them on deck. The switchmen stood on freight cars at attention, and groups in the yard uncovered and waved red and blue bandanas.

At St. Johnsonville a crew of a milk car presented the correspondents with a twenty-five gallon can of milk, and the reporters lugged it into the company coach and the privates made short work of it.

The boss of the milk car said: "Don't bother about the can. We'll be with you in Mexico soon, and will get it there."

The privates are complaining of being compelled to take so long a journey in day coaches without sleeping accommodations.

The Boston reporters are getting a taste of what it means to be war correspondents and with 2,000 miles yet to go. If it is any hotter in El Paso than N. has been during this outfit left Framingham then there are other places besides the Inferno.

Correspondents and officers have been grappling with starvation since leaving the Bay State. No provisions were made for the reporters in the mess, and they have eaten only when the train stopped long enough to scoot to the nearest grocery or cafe or fruit store. The militia officers have fared little better.

OFFICERS HUNGRY, TOO.

Yesterday General Sweetser and his staff had just bought a lunch in the Utica railroad station when told that the train must start right away. The few mouthfuls swallowed were only an aggravation. It has been this way for two days. Attempts to secure a dinner have failed.

Friends of Captain Thomas F. Murphy will be pleased to learn that since leaving Framingham he has been elevated to the rank of Regimental Adjutant, succeeding Captain John H. McGuinness, U. S. A., who had been acting as Regimental Adjutant since the outfit was transferred here a few days ago. Second Lieutenant Joseph F. McDonell, a Boston lawyer, has been made temporary commander of A Company.

All ranks are well and eager for the latest news from Mexico. They expect to fight.

Every time the train stopped boys, girls and young women got off to see soldiers and correspondents their names and addresses and pleaded to have them send souvenir postcards. In some cases the more enterprising had their addresses on envelopes with a written request inside. Girls had soldiers write their names on flags and keepsakes were swapped.

You've often heard of triumphal marches. Well, the trip of the Ninth Regiment, so far, has been all that and more. It has been a journey so triumphant that words fail to describe it.

OVATIONS EVERYWHERE.

It has been more stirring than a parade. In fact, the New York Central line between Albany and Buffalo yesterday was converted into a parade route, cheering thousands and flags marked the way. It will never fade from the memory of the officers and men of the "Fighting Ninth."

It dimmed the eyes of many of the lads in kahki. It was a wonderful expression of American patriotism. It was the only way the people had of bidding the soldiers godspeed. It could not have been more effective. It was patriotism with a capital "P," the sort that will send many more troops, and then some, if Mexico decides that she needs a spanking.

In factory towns all hands rushed to the windows, waved and shouted, and hung out placards hurriedly printed, such as:

"Give them hell, boys."

"Good luck and God bless you all."

"We'll follow if you need us."

Nor were the daubings confined to the buildings passed. The boys of Colonel Logan's command had decorated the coaches with all sorts of caricatures, epigrams and dire threats in red and white chalk.

DEFIANCE IN RED CHALK.

They outlined beanpots and marked them "Dear Old Beantown," drew harps and shamrocks and printed in letters two feet high, "The Fighting Ninth" and "The Irish Ninth." M Company of Lowell asked the American public to "watch M Company. C Company coach said: "Watch us wade through Mexico."

Villa and Carranza were depicted. The lettering and drawings amused the crowd and intensified the cheering. So did the small American flags that the Ninth's boys waved from the coach windows—flags supplied en route by children and pretty girls.

And the boys were given cakes, fruit and candy. Children gave them posies for their belts and pinbacks and hats when the train halted at sidings or for orders.

Just as we were pulling out of Rensselaer a little girl whose blonde hair was tied with blue ribbon left her mother, scampered down an embankment and across the tracks and boarded the AMERICAN correspondent a paper bag filled with cookies with chocolate frosting.

She had to stand on tip-toe to reach, and she said, with eyes gleaming: "Mamma said to give this to you soldiers and to say 'God bless you all.'"

Decide Not to Intern Mexicans Here

The fifty or more Mexicans in Greater Boston will not be interned if war breaks out between that country and the United States, according to the statement today from the office of the United States District Attorney. If the number of Mexicans was larger the matter might receive more serious attention.

The twenty-seven young Mexican women who had been staying at the Franklin Square House, West Newton street, were ordered back by Carranza three weeks ago. They were attending the New England Conservatory of Music and other schools.

Those who had been living in Winthrop left over a month ago. The Mexicans in New Bedford still remain.

To Honor Dead Troopers of Tenth

The interest felt here in the massacre of two troops of the Tenth United States Cavalry has led to arrangements for a public memorial meeting to the colored soldiers who fell at Carrizal and their officers.

This meeting will be held in Faneuil Hall Thursday night, July 6, at 8 o'clock, and is being arranged by the local branch of the National Equal Rights League and a citizens' committee.

Several prominent citizens, both white and colored, have been invited to speak. There will be a memorial poem and appropriate music. The general public is invited. E. T. Morris will preside.

EIGHTH GROWLS AT SLOW RATE OF SPEED

By HARRY A. BENWELL.

Aboard Eighth Regiment Troop Train, en route to El Paso, June 28.—With "Safety First" as their motto, or rather that of the New Haven road, the Eighth Mass. Regiment is proceeding to El Paso at a rate never exceeding thirty miles an hour.

This order, which reduces the time by exactly one-half, has caused considerable discontent among the men who are eager to reach the border and do the work for which they were called out. They are growling that, if the present rate of speed is maintained, the troops will not reach El Paso for another week.

The first section of the outfit, consisting of Colonel Frank A. Graves, headquarters, staff and first battalion of the Eighth, pulled out from Framingham at 7:15 a. m. The second section was scheduled to start within fifteen minutes and the third section three-quarters of an hour later. It was estimated that all three sections would be running close together long before the border was reached.

MANY OLD TIMERS.

The men of the first battalion, consisting of Companies A, B, C and E, are recruited to full peace strength and are in perfect health. The only man missing is Lieutenant Berry of the headquarters staff, who is assigned to duty with Brigadier-General Sweetser.

There is not a case of sickness in the outfit, and the officers, under the direction of Major Frank S. Elliott, battalion commander, are watching carefully to see that the water does not become contaminated or conditions in the cars unsanitary. Each morning the men will be given a system of exercises if possible. During stops too short they will be allowed to disembark and stretch their limbs.

There is a rumor that the regiment is to do immediate duty in Mexico, for the reason that there is no particularly jubilant over the fact that four machine guns of the Swiss type have been presented to the outfit by individuals connected with the machine company.

There are now five machine guns in the regiment, and the arrival of four additional guns will bring the total up to nine. These guns are considered one of the most valuable weapons in modern warfare.

A number of officers and men in this section of the regiment soldiering for Uncle Sam are old-timers. Colonel Graves did his bit in Cuba in '98, where he picked up enough Spanish to help him considerably in securing the necessities of life. The Colonel is so impressed with the value of a slight knowledge of Spanish that he today started a class in the elements of that lang age for the officers.

Lieutenant - Colonel William H. Perry Jes seep service, Captain Thomas F. Brown and First Lieutenant Harry J. Donnan of A Company, Cambridge, hold the unique position of being the only two officers in one company who have been in the United States Army. Captain T. K. P. Stillwell of Lynn, Acting Regimental Adjutant, and Lieutenant Thomas Livingston of H Company, Everett, have also won the Government uniform.

REAL PREPAREDNESS.

By a coincidence it was just eighteen year ago Sunday that Lieutenant Duncan was mustered into the United States service for the Spanish war. The Western Union Telegraph Company has shown its appreciation of the officers' difficulties by giving each officer on the outfit a book of franked telegrams.

The troops got away this morning under lowering skies that failed to dampen their ardor. They sang lustily as the troop trains pulled out, and enthusiastically returned the salutes given by the occupants of every house along the right of way to the Rhode Island line.

The train arrived at Providence at 8:50, just as mess was being served. I can testify as to the desirability of the food, as I breakfasted copiously on stewed tomatoes and corned beef, amalgamated into a delicious concoction, shed out with some white bread and fragrant coffee. This "slum" was precariously partaken of while balanced in the centre of the swaying kitchen of A Company.

"I have a peculiar obsession for kitchens and last night succeeded in making the acquaintance of the kitchen detail of F Company of Haverhill. The headquarters may starve, but I shall hurry immediately into the company kitchen, and defy war and all its horrors.

Exempt Catholics From Meat Ban While at Front

Baltimore, June 28.—Father Louis O'Donovan, chancellor of the diocese, made the announcement at the Cardinal's residence that the soldiers at the front would be exempted from the inhibition against eating meat on Fridays and holidays.

A number of the National Guardsmen at the mobilization camp at Laurel, being uncertain as to their duties to the church, asked for informat on.

The Chancellor declared that no dispensation was necessary as it was not in the power of the men to procure a substitute for the meat that was part of the soldiers' rations.

"DANDY FIFTH" IS CHEERED ON ITS WAY TO DUTY ON BORDER

By WILLARD H. DAVIS.

Aboard Fifth Regiment Troop Train, en route to El Paso, June 28.—Men and officers of the "Dandy Fifth" turned out of their berths today, their enthusiasm growing in intensity with every mile pounded off by the wheels of the train.

Brief setting-up exercises loosened the cramped muscles of the men, and long and lean lingered in their spirits every moment of their waking hours.

Their first day in the train was a glad relief after the interminable delays that accompanied their breaking camp and getting started toward Mexico.

At every station along the route crowds turned out to wish the Bay State boys godspeed. When the troop train stopped at Danbury a block away, it gave them an hour's freedom from the train.

AWAKENED BY CHEERS.

When the train pulled into Port Jervis, N. Y., late last night, all but one or two had turned in. They were awakened by the vociferous reception.

From the time they pulled out of the Framingham freight yards to the time the New York line was reached the boys received ovation after ovation from the people of every city and town along the line.

The enthusiasm displayed was wonderful. Although the most crawled into their berths the moment the train left Framingham, nearly twelve hours late, they could hear the cheers in the wee small hours of the morning, as the train thundered by some small hamlet or a gathering at the depot of some large city.

They slept soundly until about 10 o'clock. At that time breakfast of pork chops, potatoes and coffee was served. The boys then lounged about, reading, playing cards, some struggling over Spanish books and others harmonizing with the aid of a harmonica. In the Pullman attached to the rear end and occupied by the officers similar scenes were enacted.

A DARK MYSTERY.

The first real mystery of the organization developed this morning about 9 o'clock, when "Henry" the colored porter who handled the train at Framingham, and was scheduled to go with the boys right through to Texas, disappeared.

He made up the three berths, then dropped from sight. It was later learned that he had explained to one of the officers that Mexico was no place for a nervous man and that he would not complete the trip. He left the unit at Mansfield and the officers were obliged to do their own "portering."

The feature of the day, however, was the mustering in of the Rev. Lyman Rollins, pastor of St Michael's parish and chaplain of the Fifth Regiment.

The ceremony, an impressive affair, was most unique owing to the fact that the "Fighting Parson," as he has been dubbed, was sworn in in the dinky little caboose at the extreme end of the long train, swaying from side to side, and going at the rate of about thirty-five miles an hour.

"FIGHTING PARSON" A FAVORITE.

Colonel Willis W. Stover swore the parson in. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a few regimental officers, begrimed trainmen and newspaper men, who all stood at attention with heads bared. With upraised right hand, the parson swore allegiance to the State and nation, and passed into the Federal service.

Parson Rollins is a great favorite with the boys. He enjoys a good joke, puts a good one over once in a while, and is solicitous of the welfare of every man on the train.

Another popular man is Train Quartermaster Mark E. Smith. He is obliged to be in forty different places at once to smooth over all entanglements and keep every one happy. He does all these things and hasn't slipped up yet. It's interesting to watch Colonel Stover desert the luxurious appointments of the Pullman, Erie, and go into the cute caboose attached at the rear end of the train.

Each time that I passed through to the observation platform I found him perched away up in the pilot's seat, with his head back on the leather cushion, and puffing away at his favorite pipe of peace.

BALD-HEADED "IL"

From this point one could get a wonderful view of the surrounding country and at the same time receive the fresh air. It is literally sitting on the roof of the caboose.

As I strolled through the car occupied by Company H, from Charlestown, in command of Captain George Lattimer, incidentally considered the liveliest bunch of boys on the train, I noticed considerable difference in their appearance. At a close examination I found that every man has been "clipped."

Private Fred Carroll of East Boston, the barber, had separated the boys from their hair at fifteen cents apiece. He was assisted by Private Shaver George Needham of Dorchester, the bean brummer of the company. "Orange" charged a jitney for his shave.

"Bald" Kane, well known in Charlestown as a singer and comedian, keeps the car in an uproar with his actions. He is clever, and since he has his hair taken away from him, he gets a lurch without having to say a word.

The company trio, consisting of Fred Carroll, Sam Stone and Joe Kane, lead the singing, and kept the boys in good humor.

Sergeant John Corcoran of Quincy was the recipient of a comb and brush today, the gift of his company mates, who presented it to him, accompanied by a few new speeches. The sergeant appreciated the gift and the practical joke, because he hasn't a spear of hair left on his head.

The company is treated to stereopticon views at any time of the day they desire. All the boys have to do is to go over to Bugler Willis Hart, roll up his shirtsleeve and raze upon the tatooed arm of the famous musician. He has all of the decorations of the Orient stenciled on his brawny arm and takes great delight in telling the stories connected with the decorations.

John Greery and Jake Gerrig, the latter company "banker," have but one complaint to make. They won't be able to go in swimming at Revere Beach this Summer. They are the only Revere boys in the regiment and are very popular.

Lieutenant William R. Buckminster, in command of L Company of Malden, a prominent Boston attorney, has proven himself one of the most popular officers on the train.

They have one hour's drill each day at some point along the route. Yesterday it was Danbury, Ct. They do much drilling, read considerable about Mexico, its geography and other details, figure out strategetic way questions and in every way are just as serious-minded as they are jovial.

COUNCIL OF WAR TODAY.

Today Colonel Stover and his staff will hold an executive session, when business pertaining to the regiment will be taken up. As a result of the delay in starting, and because of the congestion along the route, it is believed that the trip will consume at least six or seven days.

Major Fred E. Grinnell, surgeon of the regiment, and in civil life Dr. Fred E. Grinnell, medical examiner of Norfolk County, states that the men are in good condition. Corporal Gilvary, yesterday's sun victim, is improving each day; he is in the care of the medical corps.

As the troop train arrived at Port Jervis, N. Y., a crowd of a thousand people were on hand to greet the boys; boxes of candy were showered on them. Judge H. H. Fullerton of the District Court addressed the gathering from a mail truck. He congratulated he soldiers and made a stirring speech urging the young men of his town to recruit

Says Mexican Flag Will Float on U. S. Capitol

Nogales, Ariz., June 28.—Circulars spread broadcast from Hermosillo by recruiting officers and brought here by American refugees contain a call to arms. They say in part:

"No fighting will be necessary. Our brave troops will simply march northward, brushing the gringos aside until our glorious tricolor floats from the dome of the Capitol at Washington."

The refusal of members of the State militia to subscribe to the federal oath, in some cases will probably result in serious trouble and financial loss for the men, today's developments showed.

The thirty-six members of the Signal Battalion who refused to follow the example of the rest of their band and take the federal oath were stripped of their uniforms. Dressed in blue overalls they were compelled to do much of the heavy and disagreeable work about camp.

It was learned today that eighty-three members of the First Cavalry refused the oath, thereby winning jeers and taunts from the rest of the corps.

Shouts of "quitter, coward, yellow dogs" were hurled at the delinquents as their comrades moved away.

From the financial side of the situation the members of the bands of the Fifth and Eighth Regiments who refused to take the oath are likely to fare the worst of all.

MAY LOSE CONTRACTS.

As the result of their action, these bands may lose their contracts with the Metropolitan Park Commission, calling for a series of sixteen concerts each at the public parks this Summer, which would represent a loss of $2,450 for each band.

There will be a meeting of the Metropolitan Park Commission when the matter will come up for discussion.

The band leaders will be sent a letter asking if they will be in a position to fulfill their contracts and play at the band concerts this year. By taking this action, the commission will put the issue squarely up to the men.

It has been called to the attention of the Park Commission that in the event of these bands playing at the public parks serious trouble would be likely to occur, because of the strong feeling roused by their refusal to serve with the troops.

It has been the policy of the Park Commission to award the contracts for the band concerts to the regimental bands of the State militia, believing that such action would tend to increase interest in the troops and encourage enlistments. The sum of $20,000 is appropriated for this purpose each year.

MOVE TO BAR INDIVIDUALS.

It has been unofficially learned the commission that the Ninth Regiment band would not be affected by any new rule that might be adopted, as it is understood that every member of the band was willing to take the oath, although some were refused because of age or physical disability.

The bands of the First Corps of Cadets, Coast Artillery Corps and the Naval Brigade are not affected, as they have not been called out.

Another question that will be taken up by the board will be whether any members of the regimental bands that refused to serve will be permitted to play at any concert in the case of his joining some other musical organization.

It was learned today that Troop D of Roxbury enlisted almost to a man.

Call for Crews to Man Mexican Railways

The War Department, through William B. Lee, president of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, issues a call for 1,500 members who are willing to go to Mexico and man the trains in that country in event of this country seizing railways of northern Mexico.

Already more than 100 members of the Boston lodge have signified their willingness to go.

The department wishes to obtain the services of 200 engineers, 400 firemen and 800 brakemen.

The letter says that the men will be expected to move at a moment's notice. They will be paid the regular union scale of wages and will not be required to join the army or quit a contract.

Their wages will commence from the time of notification and they will receive transportation from their homes to the concentration point, probably at El Paso.

70 Americans Leave Mexico City for U. S.

By International News Service.

Mexico City, June 28.—Seventy Americans left here yesterday in a special car attached to the regular train for Vera Cruz, en route to the United States, and others are leaving today.

The reply to the Wilson note is expected to be given out today. The American opinion believe this government will hold to the position previously taken.

"The Wilson note referred to in the above dispatch is apparently the long note sent to Special City some time ago, which was not given out on Sunday, demanding the immediate release of American prisoners.

QUICK JUSTICE FOR 6 MEXICANS WHO KILLED RANCHER AND BRIDE

By International News Service.

Columbus, N. M., June 28.—Six of the twenty-five Mexican bandits who murdered William Parker and his bride on their ranch near Hachita, have been run down and killed, according to a dispatch received by a relative of the Parkers here. The bandits were overtaken by an auto posse from Hachita, which has returned to that city.

Parker and his wife, who had been married only five months, were brutally tortured before being killed, according to stories received here today. These said that Mrs. Parker was compelled to watch the mutilation of her husband.

The bodies of the young rancher and his wife were brought to Hachita early today. Each had been shot three times.

According to available information the attack on the Parker ranch was made by twenty-five armed and mounted men. After killing the Americans they rode off, driving ahead of them twenty-five of Parker's horses, shouting "Viva Mexico, Viva La Patria."

Trevino Promises Fair Treatment

By International News Service.

El Paso, June 28.—General Jacinto B. Trevino, the Mexican commander of Chihuahua, in a personal telegram to the International News Service, guarantees civilized treatment for the American prisoners taken in the Carrizal fight.

The message was in reply to a communication sent to the Carranza commander on Sunday night after the report that he intended to execute the Americans. The answer follows:

Chihuahua, Mex.

El Paso Bureau, International News Service.

With pain I have taken notice of the news published that the American prisoners taken at Carrizal will be executed. We know perfectly the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo signed in the year 1848, in which among other things is stipulated the treatment that should be accorded prisoners of war.

Therefore, you may be assured that we know how to respect the laws and treaties and if any one should fail in their compliance it will not be ourselves. You may make this public in any way you desire.

J. B. TREVINO,
Commander in Chief.

Carranza Calls on Mexicans to Prepare for Nation's Defence

By International News Service.

Mexico City, June 28.—First Chief Carranza in a speech to 10,000 students, who offered their services in case of war, reiterated his statement that any further attempts by the American punitive expedition to advance in Chihuahua would be met by force. He said:

In the last note forwarded to the American government it was declared that if a new expedition should cross into Mexico or if the expedition now in Chihuahua should attempt to advance, it would be repulsed by force.

The American government, probably to test the truth of this assertion, moved a column and caused the punitive expedition to advance. The Constitutionalist soldiers, fulfilling their duty, repulsed the Americans.

SEEKS PEACEFUL SOLUTION.

Before leading the country into a bloody war the government desires to exhaust all means for a peaceful solution which shall not conflict with the national honor. General Carranza explained the failure to publish in Mexico the recent note from the United States Government by saying:

If the note has not been published it is because of the fact that it is more than a reply to our note; it is a series of charges.

Rectifications in the statements made in this note are being prepared so that both documents may be given to the public at the same time.

Carranza exhorted the young men to maintain their enthusiasm by military preparation. He exclaimed:

ALL OF NATION WILL AID.

If this enthusiasm cannot be made available at the present time, it will nevertheless prove a guarantee against any clash with the United States which may come sooner or later.

Mexico, in defending her sovereignty, will be defending that of all Latin America.

I am satisfied that the whole Mexican nation, men, women and even children, will be prompt to sacrifice themselves to defend their country in the presence of danger.

Carranza's speech was called forth by the request of the students that he give them rifles and munitions that they might start north immediately to effect the so-called punitive expedition upon Mexican soil.

Late Mexico Bulletins

Nogales, Ariz., June 28.—Refugees from Mexico today brought word that Carranzista authorities have ordered the Americans in that country to surrender their arms.

El Paso, June 28.—It was officially denied at Fort Bliss today that wounded Mexicans had been taken to the American hospital base at Colonia Dublan. The report came from Mexican sources and gave rise to the belief that another engagement had been fought with Pershing's troops.

Washington, June 28.—Rear Admiral Winslow, commander of the Pacific Fleet, today informed the Navy Department that more than 500 American refugees would be immediately started to the United States from the west coast on the Glacier and the Buffalo. Sixty-eight Americans in the Yaqui valley refused to leave.

50,000 READY TO STRIKE AT U. S.

El Paso, June 28.—Four Mexican armies, aggregating 50,000 men, are massed in the State of Chihuahua, ready, at a declaration of war, to hurl themselves with lightning swiftness at the United States. Thirty thousand of this gigantic force are fully equipped cavalrymen.

The Carranzistas hold as their bases the most important strategic points in the state both for attack on the United States and to repulse an invading force from the north.

All are on main railroad lines of the district, with ample facilities for rapid reinforcement by one or another army.

The most northerly base, within easy striking distance of El Paso, is at Villa Ahumada. This point, near where the Carrizal fight took place, is located on the Mexican Central Railroad, only eighty miles south of El Paso. Ten thousand men are reported to be mobilized there.

At Chihuahua City, about 140 miles farther south on the same road, 15,000 troops are massed. Still farther south on this line—at Santa Rosalia—the main force, numbering about 25,000 men, is stationed. At San Antonio, about fifty miles west of Chihuahua City, the third army is positioned.

This vital information was brought to General Bell by five American mining men who arrived here from Parral, about 150 miles south of Chihuahua. The men reported that they had been attacked by a Mexican mob at Santa Rosalia and narrowly escaped with their lives.

The party reported that twenty-two American soldiers and the scout, Spillsbury, were being held prisoners in the penitentiary at Chihuahua. Two other American troopers—survivors of the Carrizal fight—were captured at Guzman, southwest of El Paso. They had made their way across the desert about ninety miles and were near death from privation.

As if to emphasize Mexico's defiance to the United States General Carvajal, at Guzman, sent the prisoners to Juarez.

There, within sight of the country for which they had fought and nearly died, and of American soldiers patrolling the bank of the Rio Grande, they were chained into the Mexican cantel. They will be sent to Chihuahua today.

The American mining men included H. W. Collins, H. A. Buell, Howard Gray, Joseph Pelanos and H. G. Hickey. They were employed at the plant of the Alvarado Mining and Milling Company at Parral. Fearing an attack by Mexicans, they left Parral June 21, traveling overland to Boquillas and thence by train to Santa Rosalia. It was at the latter point they were mobbed.

Mr. Collins said:

More than 1,000 Mexicans were massed at the station when we stepped off the train. They believed we were American soldiers. Stones and clubs were rained on us.

A detachment of soldiers was hurried to the station to protect us from the mob. They had to fire towards the crowd and use their bayonets to prevent the frenzied people from tearing us to pieces.

The soldiers formed a circle about us and marched us down the street to the quartel general. A steady rain of stones and sticks fell upon us from the mob, which followed. Mr. Gray was knocked unconscious and we carried him on. Not one of us escaped injury.

We convinced the colonel in charge of the quartel that we were not soldiers and he dispersed the mob. Under cover of night we were taken to a train and sent to Chihuahua. We had no difficulty from there on.

T. R. Ready to Lead Division

New York, June 28.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt will be among the very first to join the colors in case of a declaration of war and a call for volunteers. It is planned for him to lead a division composed of 12,000 of the most skilled soldiers and the most hardened veterans in the United States if he is able to get the required permission from the Administration.

No one who has not had previous experience as a soldier will be admitted into this remarkable army command, headed by the lieutenant-colonel of the famous Rough Riders' regiment, and a former President of the United States.

To lead this division Colonel Roosevelt will have to obtain from the Administration the commission of major-general in the volunteer army.

The Roosevelt command will consist of four brigades, of which two will be cavalry, one infantry, one field artillery, in addition to which the division will boast of an adequate complement of aeroplanes, an engineer corps, hospital corps, with motor ambulances, and a full quota of machine guns.

Quiet recruiting for this picked force had been going on all over the country for more than ten days. Already all the matters of equipment and requirement have been arranged, even to the horses, which will be supplied in the East.

a fourth, a third, even a half from the former fair prices

—to insure its quick disposal and to keep stocks at The Shepard Stores forever fresh and new.

The Fame of these Clearance Sales has been noised abroad, and now

—some of our manufacturers have asked us to help them clear their small lots. We do so gladly—at a profit for us and a saving to you.

Sale is confined to two days, THURSDAY and FRIDAY. Bi-Monthly Clearance Signs point the way—each stands for a big saving.

Please Note: Because lots are limited, we cannot promise to fill telephone nor mail orders, nor that all items will be on sale after the first day. Plenty of other lots, however, not advertised here will be shown in the various stores.

SHEPARD NORWELL COMPANY

NEW FEATURES FOR AMERICAN MAGAZINE

An artist, his beautiful girl model and a Federal prosecutor form the basis for a vivid chain of events described by Julian Hawthorne, son of Nathaniel Hawthorne, the beloved New England novelist.

This chain of events is welded into a narrative entitled "The Murder of a Soul," in which Mr. Hawthorne describes the secrets of a man, godlike and good, he undeserved punishment.

"The Murder of a Soul" is one of a powerful group of stories in the American Sunday Monthly Magazine, which is given free with next Sunday's Boston AMERICAN.

The front cover of the Monthly Magazine is "Wednesday," a delightful picture of a girl, by Harrison Fisher.

Donn Byrne, writer of absorbing crime and mystery tales, contributes "The Lion in the Streets."

"Mirage," by Virginia Terhune Van de Water, deals with the woman starved for love, deals with the situation in the comprehending, vivid manner that marks this writer's handling of human topics.

Bruno Lessing, whose tales of the New York East Side have charmed thousands of readers, shows his literary versatility in an entirely different line in his new story, "Without Rhyme or Reason." Mr. Lessing takes one automobiling and into another national field and all in most delightful manner.

"The Kingdom of the Blind" continues its Oppenheim way—a pretty thrilling way. The leading characters in this romance of war, love and spy plots come acutely to efficient action. This instalment is one that holds the reader closer than ever. The synopsis makes previous instalments clear.

McCall Selects Board to Make the Drug Probe

Governor McCall today appointed the special commission to investigate the use of habit-forming drugs in Massachusetts and the ineffectiveness of the present laws intended to stamp out the drug evil. He appointed:

Arthur D. Wilkinson of Newton, specialist in the state.

Herman C. Lythgoe, Chief of the State Department of Food and Drugs.

Abraham C. Webber, Assistant District Attorney of Suffolk County, who conducted with District Attorney Pelletier the recent investigations of the drug situation in Boston.

The legislation which authorized Governor McCall to appoint the commission was passed by the Legislature at the instance of a crusade begun by the BOSTON AMERICAN. So urgent seemed the necessity for an investigation that the legislative resolve was passed by five committees of the Legislature and by both the Senate and House without a vote being cast against it.

The commission is expected to organize at once. After a thorough investigation of the drug situation, the committee will report its recommendations to the next Legislature.

Governor McCall appointed James B. Bridges of Deerfield as sheriff of Franklin county to succeed the late Edward J. Boyle. He reappointed Dr. Frank S. Atwood of Salem as medical examiner of the Tenth Essex District, and James F. J. Gleason of Marlboro as clerk of the Marlboro police court.

GILHOOLY PARDON IS RECOMMENDED

A pardon for Frederick F. Gilhooly, who is serving a three-year term in the Charlestown State Prison for misappropriating funds intrusted to his care when he was connected with the board of Overseers of the Poor of the city of Boston, was recommended to the Governor's Council by the Pardons Committee at the close of a hearing today.

ORPET WARY AS HUNTED PREY ON STAND IN LAMBERT CASE

By International News Service.

Waukegan, Ill., June 28.—Will Orpet, looking as unhappy and forlorn as a girl who has cried all night long, drooped on the witness stand today and took by turns steel-trough every second of that tragic errand of February that finally brought him to the "three trees" in Helen Woods with a dead girl lying at his feet.

The prosecution in its minute and terrific cross-examination was dragging him a step at a time from his college room in Madison toward the death spot of Marian Lambert. The sparkling gaze of Orpet and time again he tried to fling himself recklessly through the intervening space—only to be held back by the iron hand of the prosecution.

It is fundamentally characteristic of this systematic torturer of the accused that he is to be barred from the scene of the tragedy until the last moment. Its punishing quality depends upon its painful deliberation.

FEEL LOSS OF PREY.

Orpet, in spite of the havoc that is being wrought by this delicate and ingenious play upon his nerves, fought atonally against his foe. At times he lunged at him with the fierceness of a tiger. At times he pawed playfully. At times he lay still and let the danger rush over his head. And at such times a smile flickered across his chalky face and curved lips, as red as rouge.

It is not easy work for David Joslyn, the McHenry County prosecutor who is administering the slow torture. His voice shook with anger. His eyes smouldered with wrath. He feels that his prey is slowly slipping away from him. He feels that he is breaking him down.

At times, surprising as it may seem, it would appear that he is himself on the point of breaking down. Seeing this, the attorneys for the defense clutched in. They bothered him and tittered at his blunders; interrupted him with objections hailed him and checkmated him all along the way. Time after time he turned upon them with a menacing face.

Once Attorney Potter laughed in his face. Joslyn turned full upon him and scowled for a minute.

Once again Potter spelled out for him with scrupulous care the word "thank."

"Please," suggested Potter, grinning. Joslyn looked as though he were about to turn and rend him.

With maddening slowness the following facts were gleaned from the examination:

SAW MOVING PICTURES.

On Monday night Orpet attended a moving picture show in Madison.

He left for Lake Forest at 1:05 the next afternoon.

He attended a moving picture show in Milwaukee.

On his arrival in Lake Forest his first act was to call Marian Lambert on the telephone.

In this conversation he asked Marian if he could come out and see her. She refused. They then arranged to meet at the Sacred Heart station the next morning before school in the 8:15 car for school.

He failed to hit by hit the telephone conversation as it was given in the testimony of the two Lake Forest young girls who "listened in."

He admitted that he probably told Marian he had "some dope" for her according to his earlier testimony this "dope" was molasses and water.

He next told of walking to the grounds on the Cyrus McCormick estate and retiring for the night.

The cross-examination by Attorney Joslyn on this point was similar in minute detail to that pursued earlier. Orpet did not like it.

By Joslyn:

Q—What time did you reach the garage? A—I don't know. I went in. Everything was dark and quiet. No dog barked.

Q—And in the darkness you got in all right, did you? A—Yes.

Q—Did you enter stealthily? A—No, that term don't suit me. I went through the door quietly, but not stealthily. I did not take extra precautions.

NIGHT WAS CLOUDY.

Q—Did you push on the lights? A—No, I had no need to. No, I did not strike but two matches. The night was not very dark, I think, and there was no moon.

Q—You are not sure whether the moon was shining or whether it was cloudy, as your mind was so intently fixed on getting home? A—I did have something to think about. At least I do not remember observing whether the moon was shining or not.

Q—Did you decide about sleeping in the garage at the garage door? A—I don't know.

Q—But you had not definitely decided to sleep in the garage when you entered the McCormick estate? A.—No.

Q—Did the fact that the house was dark and you feared to wake your parents cause you to sleep in the garage? A—Yes; that entered into my decision.

Q—When you reached the estate did you walk around for an hour to give your parents a chance to go to bed, as you didn't care to go in. (Objection overruled.) A—Yes.

Q—And this determined you to sleep in the garage? A—No.

Q—You have said so, haven't you? A—I did say it might have had weight.

Q—Did you go upstairs boldly or stealthily? A—I crept up as quietly as I could. I once bumped my shin on the stairs.

Q—How did you stumble? A—The stairway was circular. I was trying to go up by only the light of a match. That's all I know about it (doggedly).

Q—Did you make much noise? A—Maybe not as loud as it sounded.

Q—Did the noise seem loud because you were sneaking stealthily up the stairs? (Objection overruled.) A—I don't know that it was so loud after all.

Q—Did you hear the chauffeur snoring? A—Yes.

Q—Did you ever sleep in the room you occupied before? A—No.

Q—So far as you know there was no other room there except Charlie Portella's? A—Yes, I know there were other furnished rooms there.

Q—Why didn't you wake up Charlie Portella and speak to him? A—I didn't want to wake him up.

Q—Any other reason? You hadn't seen him for a month? A—No; I don't think so.

Orpet then in response to innumerable questions from Joslyn minutely described the interior of the second floor of the garage.

Q—Did you go straight to bed? A—I don't remember how soon, but it was shortly afterwards.

Orpet was then forced to describe minutely the contents of the room and the furnishings of the bed. After he admitted he slept with his clothes on, excepting his overcoat, and told that he slept soundly, Joslyn asked Orpet countless questions concerning just how he dressed and left the garage and as to whether he smoked a cigarette while dressing and as to how high the garage building is and exactly how many doors there and how placed.

AT HELMS WOODS.

He then brought him to the entrance of Helms Woods, where the boy was again grilled by insignificant questions as to the location of trees, ditches, roads, car lines, etc.

By Joslyn:

Q—Were you nervous and excited? A—No, but I was very cold.

Q—Did you sit down? A—No.

Q—How long before you saw Josephine and Marian coming? A—I don't remember, maybe it was five minutes. I just saw them coming down the road.

Q—Were they running? A—No.

Q—Why didn't you walk right over and talk to them when they passed the station? A—Because Vera Jackson was there. I now know that was the reason.

Q—How do you know? A—Because she took that car.

Q—Who told you? A—I don't know.

BULGAR ATTACK IN GREECE REPULSED

By International News Service.

Saloniki, June 28.—After firing 3,000 shells against the allies position in the region of Lumnitza, in northern Greece, Bulgarian troops attacked but were beaten off. Both sides sustained heavy losses.

A Life's Work

A LIFETIME of bread-making experience and the results of years of scientific research are all contained in every loaf of WARD'S BREAD. Immense sums of money have been spent to bring it to its present standard of food perfection. Modern processes and original manufacturing ideas have been developed, which make its cleanliness absolute—its quality unquestioned and its purity guaranteed 100%.

And now, thanks to the progress of science, we are able to add the already undisputed excellence of WARD'S BREAD, Arkady Yeast Food (U. S. Registered Trade Mark, issued May 9th, 1916), a preparation approved and protected by United States patents. The addition of this great discovery to the WARD scientific process of bread making gives us a distinct advantage for the making of better bread, as does also the fact that the water used in making WARD'S BREAD is filtered to take out the organic matter found in all city water.

Arkady Yeast Food is a compound of mineral salts, chiefly lime salts, such as are commonly found in natural waters. It corrects the variation found in city water, which is in some localities hard, in others soft, and which makes a marked difference in bread. It modifies natural waters to the best standard for bread making, reduces the amount of yeast required by more than half, conserves a greater proportion of the food value and natural flavor of the wheat, and produces a more nutritious and healthful loaf than can be made under any other known method.

This wonderful process makes WARD'S BREAD better tasted, sweeter and more palatable than any bread you can buy, and at the same time it furnishes the mineral element which is such an important factor in providing bone, muscle, good teeth and tissue for growing children and grown-ups as well.

Try WARD'S BREAD today and prove for yourself the truth of the claims we make for its quality, purity and positive superiority. Remember that only the highest grade materials which knowledge can discover or money buy are used in making it, and crowning all this is the assurance that it is clean inside and outside.

ESTABLISH AID CENTRE AT THE CAPITOL

Headquarters for the immediate distribution of relief to the needy families of Bay State troopers were established at the State House today by the Women's Anti-Suffrage Association of Massachusetts.

The relief had first been undertaken at the Commonwealth Armory, but Mrs. John Balch, president of the association, decided to accept the centrally located headquarters at the State House in order to be in closer touch with the military department of the State and the Massachusetts Volunteer Aid Association, which was appointed by Governor McCall to raise a relief fund of $250,000.

Mrs. Balch announced that relief already had been given to twenty-five families.

Mrs. Balch and Miss Evelyn Sears with Mrs. Charles B. Gerlick and Mrs. B. L. Robinson are among the active workers. Miss Katharine Hardwick, a social worker of the Associated Charities, has joined them in the work.

It was estimated that twenty women who were left in needy circumstances by the sudden departure of the State troops applied for relief today. The Adjutant-General's department turned over to Mrs. Balch a small sum that had been contributed for this purpose by philanthropic citizens.

Mrs. James J. Storrow is among those who have assisted in the investigation of worthy cases and in the distribution of money, food and clothing.

Mrs. Balch and Miss Sears today recommended that the work they have begun should be turned over to the Women's Special Aid Society, an auxiliary of the National Security League.

Mothers and Children Guests on American's Outing

Thousands Sail for Day's Frolic at Nantasket Beach

Scene on the good ship Betty Alden as it put out for trip to Nantasket with mothers and children as guests of the Boston AMERICAN. The lower picture shows Frederick L. Lane, general manager of the Nantasket Steamship Company, with a group of happy youngsters.

Thousands of mothers and children went to Nantasket Beach today as the guests of the Boston AMERICAN at its fourth annual outing. It was a wonderful day for the tired mothers and the kiddies.

General Joy was in complete charge of the affair. There was no place for the Gloomy in the hearts of the thousands of mothers and children who were members of the party which gathered at Rowe's wharf early in the morning, took the delightful sail down the harbor with a cool breeze fanning their faces; who later played in the sand at the beach and attended the amusements at Nantasket.

It was a gay party. The mothers, children, sisters, brothers and even grandmothers, who went on the trip, all had a glorious time.

The party remained at the beach until late in the afternoon, when everybody returned to Boston, the delightful sail back in the cool of the day being a fitting climax to a pleasant day's entertainment.

BUNDLES OF JOY.

The Betty Alden was one of the first boats to pull away from Rowe's Wharf. There were 1,604 persons aboard. The steamship Nantasket followed with 1,521 bundles of joy and gladness. The Rose Standish had 1,870 persons aboard. It was necessary to press the Old Colony into service to care for 500 more persons who wished to go on the outing.

Everything was made easy for the mothers and children by Captains Brown, Gallinan, Culper and Rathbun of the Nantasket Steamship Company. They were assisted by Captain Tuckett of the Customs House, who was aided by B. J. Dowd and W. P. Dowd.

Frederick L. Lane, manager of the Nantasket Beach Steamship Company, appeared to be everywhere, assisting in making the outing a tremendous success.

They came early to the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company's pier. The boys responded with their caps and their mirth. They came by twos and threes and fours, and still kept coming in great swarms until they filled the pier.

And then the Nantasket steamers began taking them away, the cheering, laughing, merry throng.

Truly, it was a great day at Nantasket.

At the beach everything was theirs—and it was all free. Hour after hour they enjoyed themselves to their fill, and it did not cost them a cent to have the time of their lives. Here, there and everywhere they trooped about annihilating the enemy gloom, and making themselves up to a day of joy and complete happiness.

Late in the afternoon they began returning, thoroughly satisfied and happy.

The outing was the AMERICAN'S fourth annual event for the mothers and children of Greater Boston. Those who went down last year will know how perfect is the happiness of an AMERICAN day at Nantasket. You will realize, as never before, that Nantasket's the place.

In other words, this was THE DAY.

NURSES AID PLEASURE.

Each one of the outings has been a gala event for the mothers and children. Particularly do those enjoy it who do not have the opportunity very often of seeing many attractions at the beach, and without cost to themselves.

Prominent on the outing were the nurses from the Cambridge Nurses' Evening Training School, a group of conscientious, earnest workers, in love with their chosen profession and on hand to help.

They were volunteers, willing to lend a hand. They took care of the babies on the trip, assisting mothers who otherwise wouldn't spend half so pleasant a day.

There are heroes and heroines of peace, as well as of war, and these nurses can be put down as among the heroines of peace. Among those on the outing to assist in the care of the babies were Misses Ada Belding, Catherine Croy, Mary Keane, Mary Walcott, Bertha Hentzi, Florence Dwyer, Catherine MacLoud, Mary Holland, Frances Morgan and M. Jenness Hall, superintendent in charge of the nurses.

SPIRIT OF CO-OPERATION.

Behind the success of the event lies the spirit of co-operation. Co-operating in the efforts to make the day gloriously happy for the 10,000 mothers and children were the genial general manager of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Company, Mr. Frederic L. Lane; Manager George A. Dodge of Paragon Park, and Vice-President F. M. Archer of the Moxie Company, all three of whom assisted greatly and in many ways in efforts toward the success of today's outing.

General Manager Lane left no stone unturned to assist ever since the AMERICAN chartered the splendid boats of the Nantasket Steamboat Company. He studied all the details and mapped out the program so that there was not the slightest hitch in arrangements.

The first steamer left the company's pier at Rowe's wharf at 8:30. The second went an hour later, the third at 10:30 and the fourth at 11 a. m.

Then came the unsurpassed water ride to the beach. It is indescribably exhilarating and refreshing, and it the mothers enjoy it the children enjoy it a thousand times more.

And after that superb hour of pleasure and fresh air and fine scenery came the joys of Nantasket.

Paragon Park was filled with features worth while. It was worth going miles to see and enjoy. Its amusements are high class, and when you consider that these thousands of mothers and children got them all absolutely free of charge, you will see just why they appreciate the outing. Manager Dodge had a corps of special attendants on hand to guide his guests around.

Among the many attractions free to them in the park were Madame Rebaria Jordan, who performs an aerial act seventy feet in the air; the unmountable mule, Maud, which neither bites nor kicks; a new slide for the kiddies, the boat swing and Martland's band concert. And there were others, a perfect feast for everyone, old and young alike.

DRINK TONS OF MOXIE.

Through the courtesy of the Moxie Company, Moxie was served free to them in the park were Madame Rebaria Jordan, who performs an aerial act seventy feet in the air; the unmountable mule, Maud, which neither bites nor kicks; a new slide for the kiddies, the boat swing and Martland's band concert. And there were others, a perfect feast for everyone, old and young alike.

Among the many attractions free to them in the park were Madame Rebaria Jordan, who performs an aerial act seventy feet in the air; the unmountable mule, Maud, which neither bites nor kicks; a new slide for the kiddies, the boat swing and Martland's band concert. And there were others, a perfect feast for everyone, old and young alike.

They were stamped: "Mothers' Day —Boston AMERICAN. Courtesy of the Moxie Company." Eighteen men were on hand to dispense the cooling drink.

All these things, making up a program that splendored to old and young, showed the value of co-operation in so big an undertaking as this outing. Not often do so many delights come as a free offering. And it goes to the credit of General Manager Lane, Manager Dodge and Vice-President Archer that this was a perfect day for the happy mothers and children. And don't forget the nurses who gave their time to add to the joys of the day.

FEISS TALKS ON 'BUSINESS' AT SAGAMORE

Sagamore Beach, June 28.—Richard A. Feiss of Cleveland, O., was the principal speaker at the second day's session of the Ninth Sagamore Sociological Conference, taking as his subject "Personal Relationship in Business Administration."

Mr. Feiss, who is the general manager of a large wholesale clothing manufacturing plant in Cleveland, emphasized the importance of human relationship, which he said was the main problem of management. Without harmonious and co-ordinated human effort, the highest form of accomplishment is impossible, he said.

An audience even larger than that of yesterday crowded the Assembly Hall. V. C. Henderschott will speak this evening on "Educational Requirements in Modern Industry."

The conference will come to an end tomorrow. This morning session will be given up to a general discussion, and Louis F. Post will speak in the evening on "Forward to the First Principles."

Following the conference there will be an open forum council Friday, where there will be an informal discussion.

LEWISTON BOY DIES OF THROAT WOUND

Lewiston, Me., June 28.—Ralph Rounds, four, son of Charles Rounds of Mechanics Falls, died at the Central Maine General Hospital today as the result of a wound received in his throat when he was playing with a piece of curtain rod. The boy was using the hollow rod as a pea blower when he fell, with one end of the tube in his mouth. In falling the tube was driven down his throat, causing severe wounds.

WARREN BROTHERS TO PAY SOLDIERS

Warren Brothers Company, contractors of No. 142 Berkeley street, have voted to pay in full the salaries of all its employes who are called to military service in connection with the trouble in Mexico.

BIG PLAYGROUND FIGHT WON BY SOUTH BOSTON

As the result of a vigorous protest made today by Senator Daniel J. Chapman and the members of the South Boston legislative delegation, the Governor's Council refused to approve an order of the Port Directors directing the City of Boston to vacate within three months the Commonwealth Playgrounds in South Boston.

The playgrounds provide recreation facilities for one of the most congested districts in Boston.

An industrial establishment is shortly to locate near the playgrounds and the Boston Port Directors, subject to confirmation by the Governor's Council, have granted the New Haven railroad authority to run its tracks through a section of the playgrounds to the proposed new industry.

Senator Chapman and Representatives Foley, Casey and Ware protested to the Council that the grant of this location would destroy three of the five baseball diamonds and many of the gymnasium facilities now enjoyed by the children of the district.

"We told the Port Directors that the railroad could easily run its tracks across C street without interfering with the playgrounds," said Representative Foley, "but Chairman McSweeney said that would inconvenience the New Haven road. He seems to care more for the New Haven than he does about the children of that district.

MAYOR'S BOARD REPORTS ON PAVING

Mayor Curley's paving commission made its long-expected and long-delayed report today.

The chief recommendations are that specifications be made so that all forms of bituminous pavement may have an equal show; providing for different forms of pavement for streets bearing varying degrees of traffic; stricter guarantees by contractors regarding repairs.

The commission includes Professor Hector J. Hughes of Harvard, chairman; Guy C. Emerson, chief engineer of the Finance Commission; Arthur W. Dean, engineer of the Massachusetts Highway Commission; Edward F. Murphy, Commissioner of Public Works; John R. Rablin, engineer of the Metropolitan Park Commission, and James H. Sullivan of the city's highway division of the Public Works Department.

WOULD RAISE STANDARD.

If the recommendations are adopted, it will do away with favoritism, split contracts and contractors' guarantees that guarantee practically nothing. The report recommends that the guarantee of the American Society of Municipal Improvements be adopted and enforced.

The commission settles the long-standing disputes as to the merits of the patented bitulithic, controlled by Warren Brothers, and the so-called sheet asphalt and Topeka pavements by recommending the specifications of the American Society of Municipal Improvements, which provide for the widest competition.

The controversy over the merits of natural asphalt, controlled by the Barber Company, and the residual asphalt is settled by saying, "No unanimous conclusion has been reached."

CLASSIFIED TRAFFIC.

The commission divides the paving of the city into six classes and makes the following recommendations:

Class 1—Heavy Traffic Streets: Granite blocks on concrete base with grouted joints.

Class 2—Main Arteries: Recommended as in Class 1 with a few exceptions.

Class 3—Retail shopping and office building districts: Wood block or best grades of bituminous pavement on concrete base.

Class 4—Residential districts, (City Proper): Wood blocks or bituminous pavement, choice to be determined by character of traffic.

Class 5—Residential Districts (suburban): Cheaper types of bituminous, using old macadam surfaces for base, where suitable, or concrete pavement.

Class 6—Park Roads (pleasure traffic only): Bituminous pavement, using macadam for base where suitable or concrete pavement.

ROXBURY GIRL WEDS NEW YORK ATTORNEY

Miss Mary G. Morton of No. 29 Schuyler street, Roxbury, daughter of James H. Morton, was married today by the Right Rev. P. J. Supple at St. Hugh's Church, Grove Hall, to Edward Kelly, a New York lawyer. There was a reception and wedding breakfast following the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Kelly will make their home in East Orange, N. J.

The bride and groom were introduced by William Jennings Bryan while they were traveling in Italy.

WALTHAM TO HOLD PARADE ON FOURTH

The preparedness parade in Waltham, about which some controversy has waged, will take place July 4, it was announced today. "Tag Day" will be celebrated in the city the same day, at which time the money obtained will be turned over to aid the Waltham members of the militia.

Be Careful in Using Soap on Your Hair

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulsified cocoanut oil, as it is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Advertisement.

NEW U. S. BOND ISSUE PLANNED TO MEET MEXICAN CRISIS

By International News Service.

Washington, June 28.—Congressional leaders today sought to patch up their plans for raising revenue, shattered by the unexpected preparedness appropriations resulting from the Mexican crisis. The leaders found themselves with a $210,000,000 revenue bill ready for passage by the House, and expenditures exceeding by more than $150,000,000 the estimates on which the revenue measure was based.

Majority Leader Kitchin of the House and his colleagues of the Ways and Means Committee had planned to pass the revenue bill on a pence basis and to allow the administration to take care of Mexican expenses by an issue of war bonds.

But conferences between Representative Kitchin and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo developed extraordinary appropriations already made, increasing $100,000,000 added to the naval appropriation bill in the Senate, $25,000,000 added to the army bill in the House, and a $25,000,000 urgent deficiency bill now before the House would necessitate the raising of at least $150,000,000 more than the Ways and Means Democrats had provided for in the revenue bill.

Secretary McAdoo suggested that additional taxes be placed in the revenue measure to meet the exigency, but the Congressional leaders opposed this plan. They declare that the $100,000,000 can be secured by the issue of Panama Canal bonds covering the amount of money the Democratic administration has paid for canal expenses out of current revenues. These bonds are already granted, and will be awaiting issue.

The House Democrats also pointed out that increased income tax returns and other increased revenue would leave a general fund balance of nearly $250,000,000 in the treasury at the end of the fiscal year. Half of this, they declare, could easily be used to offset the $150,000,000 additional expenditures.

Secretary McAdoo showed no disposition to make an effort to finance the Mexican trouble without a bond issue by raising taxes but the House Democrats are strongly opposed to this plan.

FIREMAN GETS BOY FROM LOCKED ROOM

The Watertown fire department was called today to rescue three-year-old Harold Chamberlain of No. 30 Union street, who locked himself in the bathroom of his home. The door closes with a spring lock. When the child found himself unable to get out of the room his cries aroused his mother. She called up the department and in a few minutes George Butler, one of the firemen, had gained access to the room by means of a window.

WELLESLEY GIRL TO BE BRIDE TONIGHT

A wedding of much interest will take place tonight in Newton when Miss Ruth Beedle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Beedle, of No. 4 Beaumont road, is to become the bride of Charles Robert Union. There will be a reception at the Hunnewell Club following the ceremony. Miss Beedle is a Wellesley graduate of the class of 1914 and Mr. Union a Harvard '11 man. Miss Beedle will be attended by Miss Edith L. Brayton.

WAR SUMMARY

British and French guns are incessantly bombarding German positions along the northern end of the western front, especially, as the German statement says, on both sides of the Somme. Unofficial dispatches from allied sources refer continually to indications of the long-awaited general offensive of the allies. In some places the bombardment has been incessant for seventy-two hours. The British statement reports the repulse of a German attack near the Ypres salient and successful dashes by British patrols.

Semi-official report today from London said the Germans had massed twenty-three divisions along the Verdun sector, from St. Mihiel over to Avocourt, and that nine of these were concentrated in the recent drive which gained the armored Thiaumont work for the Teutons. The opening official statement today from Paris recorded the repulse of two German attacks south of Hill 321 and at Fleury Village. Berlin has denied a French claim of progress in the Thiaumont region.

The Russian War Office states that prisoners captured by General Brusiloff's army from June 4 to 23 total 199,000. The Russians are now locked with the German-Austrian forces in three battle points, north of the Pripet swamp, south of the swamp and the third ranging from the junction of the Strypa and the Dneister southward. No important changes are reported. Berlin announces two successful advances in the northern fighting ground and the capture of a Russian position southwest of Sokul in the middle conflict.

Rome makes official announcement of continued success in driving back the Austrians in the Tyrol and in regaining ground lost in the Austrian drive. Significant in the Rome communique is the mention of "rear guard actions," with the Italian advance continuing between the Adige and the Brenta. Cavalry is mentioned in the Italian forces for the first time.

Turkey announces several local victories over the Russians in southwest Persia and Armenia.

NEW ATTACKS AT VERDUN ARE CHECKED

By CHARLES F. BERTELLI,
Staff Correspondent of the International News Service.

Paris, June 28.—Attempts by the Germans to advance on the Verdun front last night were easily checked, the French War Office announced today.

Two strong attacks were launched east of the Meuse River, the communique states, but both were repulsed.

German troops tried to storm the French position at Hill No. 321, south of the Haudromont Quarries, but the attack broke down under a hail of hand grenades.

On the line of Fleury Vaux Woods and Chapitre Woods, another German assault was launched, but it, too, proved futile.

To the west of the Meuse the big gun duel continued.

The British offensive, which is now in its initial stage, is taking the form of steady pressure against the German line. Adopting the German methods the British are pounding away at the German positions night and day with heavy artillery, and no infantry attack is made until the way has been effectually prepared with shell fire.

French military critics warn the people not to expect any spectacular advance at the northern end of the line. It may be weeks, the military men say, before the German lines break beneath the constant pounding of the French and British guns.

Premier Briand, who has just returned from a visit to the headquarters of General Sir Douglas Haig, is deeply impressed with the preparations made for the offensive, particularly the great amount of heavy artillery massed and the huge supplies of shells.

The text of the official communique follows:

"In the region south of Lassigny (in the Somme section) the Germans during the night attempted several surprise attacks against our small posts. All were repulsed.

"In Champagne a strong reconnoitring party of the enemy which attempted to reach our lines in the direction of the St. Hilaire LeGrand-St. Souplet road, was dispersed by our fire.

"On the left bank of the Meuse there was an artillery duel in the sectors of Avocourt and Chattancourt. At Hill No. 304 and Le Mort Homme grenade skirmishes occurred.

"On the right bank a counter attack launched at 3 o'clock this morning against our positions northeast of Hill No. 321 was repulsed with grenades. Another counter attack directed against our position between the village of Fleury and the eastern edge of Vaux and Chapitre wood was immediately stopped by our curtains of fire.

"Near the Thiaumont wood, there was a violent battle during the night. The situation on the rest of the front is unchanged."

Berlin Reports Repulse of Allies

By International News Service.

Berlin, June 28.—Repulse of British attacks in the north and of French thrusts at Verdun is reported in the German official war statement issued today.

Following is the text of the official report:

"West front—From the Labassee Canal to a point south of the Somme, reconnoitring attacks by the enemy, accompanied by gas clouds and artillery fire, were repulsed. In Champagne French attacks failed.

"On the left side of the Meuse night attacks against our position at Le Mort Homme were repulsed.

"On the right side of the Meuse, after an intense bombardment, the French delivered strong attacks against our newly captured positions on the ridge of Froide de Terre and also against our position in Fleury and to the east of the village.

"All broke down with extraordinary losses for the enemy.

"East front—Troops of the army of General von Linsengen have captured by storm the village of Linowka and also the Russian position south of the village.

"Balkan front—Artillery duels are in progress on the Vardar river and south of Lake Doiran.

"Aviation—An enemy aeroplane was shot down at Douaumont, northeast of Verdun."

British Continue Bombardment in West

By FREDERICK PALMER,
Special Correspondent of the International News Service.

British Headquarters in France, June 27, via London, June 28.—British guns continued today the bombardment begun yesterday over a broad front.

Your correspondent, riding seventy miles behind the lines, found the same regular pounding of positions, whether in the Somme region or in the region of Vimy ridge.

Going to a point of high ground which allowed a broad sweep of vision across the rolling country of to the forward observation posts and the trenches, we found the horizon always bounded by shell bursts.

There might be a lull at one point for a while, but soon the inferno in that direction was renewed.

Under the cover of these bombardments, the British made numerous trench raids last night, bringing in bunches of prisoners. The British released some gas at certain points, but desisted when the weather was found unfavorable.

SUBMARINE SINKS TWO ITALIAN SHIPS

London, June 28.—The Italian steamships Clara and Aventino have been sunk by a submarine in the Mediterranean.

The Clara was a vessel of 5,562 tons, plying between Italy and the United States, and is believed to have been bound for America when sunk. It was built in 1914 and hailed from Genoa.

The Aventino was an older vessel and displaced only 209 tons.

ITALIANS FORCE AUSTRIANS BACK

By International News Service.

Rome, June 28.—The relentless advance of the Italians continues. The battered Austro-Hungarian army of invasion has now fallen back from three to six miles and the retreat is still in full swing.

Fighting is extending all along the line, heavy bombardments taking place where the infantry is not engaged. Many Austro-Hungarian positions have been captured within the past twenty-four hours.

The following official report on operations was given out today by the Italian War Office:

"Between the Adige and Brenta rivers, despite increased resistance of the enemy we made further progress on Tuesday. Violent artillery actions are taking place in the Lagarina and Arsa valleys, where we have shelled Monte Trappola, Monte Testo and Col Santo. We captured enemy trenches at Malga and Monte Zugna.

"Between the Posina and Astico valleys we captured positions of the enemy at Monte Galmondo and Monte Cavlojo. Cavalry detachments pursuing the enemy reached Pedescala on the Astico river west of Asiago and north of Arsiero.)

"On the southern side of the Assa Valley we have reached the slopes of Monte Rasta, Monte Interroto and Monte Moscleagh, which were strongly held by enemy rear guards.

"Northwards, we captured Monte Colombara and approached Galmarara Valley.

"In the upper But, after artillery firing we captured redoubt and trenches in the neighborhood of Freikofel.

"On the Isonzo front artillery duels are in progress. In raids on this front we captured 250 prisoners, including seven officers and two machine guns.

STEAMER BRINGS 51 FROM SOUTH AFRICA

With fifty-one passengers aboard, the British steamship City of Calcutta arrived here today from Calcutta and Colombo via South African ports. Many of the passengers embarked at Durban and Cape Town, South Africa, where they had been waiting weeks for an opportunity to come to America. Captain Elliott reported congestion of American freight in all South African ports. His ship brought a capacity cargo.

PAGE TOLD TO KEEP EAR OPEN FOR PEACE

Washington, June 28.—Thomas Nelson Page, American ambassador to Italy now in this country, will leave for his post Saturday with instructions from President Wilson to "keep an alert ear for peace talk in Europe."

Ambassador Page admitted this today after a conference with President Wilson at the White House.

"I have not been instructed to begin peace activity, however," he said.

If it Fits

If your shoe is properly fitted it will wear longer, keep its shape better and look better.

Why?

Because the act of walking exerts a tremendous strain on the shoe, but if properly fitted, the strain is so evenly distributed that no point is made to do more than its share.

"TALES OF THE TRADE" IN SEA WAR CONTINUED BY KIPLING

Copyright, 1916, by Rudyard Kipling.

By RUDYARD KIPLING.

London, June 28.—Before we pick up the further adventures of the armed marine E-14 and her partner, the E-11, here is what you might call a "cutting out" affair in the Sea of Marmora, which the E-12, Lieutenant-Commander Bruce, put through quite on the old lines.

Her main motors gave trouble from the first. She seems a cripple, for most of that trip. She sighted two small steamers, one towing the raft and the other three sailing vessels, making seven keels in all.

She stopped the first steamer and noticed that she carried a lot of stores. Moreover, the crew, who have no boats—were all on deck in life-belts. Not seeing any gun, the E-12 ran alongside and told the first lieutenant to board her.

The steamer then threw a bomb at the E-12, which struck, but luckily did not explode, and opened fire on the boarding party with rifles and a concealed one-inch gun. The E-12 answered her with a six-pounder and also her rifles.

TRY TO FOUL PROPELLERS.

The two sailing ships in tow very properly tried to foul the E-12's propellers, so she opened fire with her rifles. It was an ordered, unexciting fight as a man could wish—the first lieutenant and his boarding party engaged on the steamer, the wind full of the steamer and fouled by the sailing ships, her six-pounder methodically perforating the steamer from bow to stern, the steamer's one-incher and the rifles from the sailing ships raking everything and everybody else, the E-12's coxswain on the conning tower passing ammunition and the 12's one workable motor developing slight defects at, of course, the moment when power to manoeuvre was vital.

The account is almost as difficult to entangle as the actual mess must have been. At any rate, the six-pounder caused an explosion in the steamer's ammunition, by which the steamer was sunk in quarter of an hour, giving time—and a hot time it must have been—for the E-12 to get clear and sink two of the sailing ships.

She then chased the second steamer, who slipped her three tows and ran for the shore. The E-12 knocked her about a good deal with gun fire as she fled, saw her drive on the beach, well-alight and then, since the beach opened fire with a gun at 1,500 yards, went away to retinker her motors and write up her log.

A BUSY MID-SUMMER.

The approved of the first lieutenants behavior under very trying circumstances—this probably refers to the explosion of ammunition by the six-pounder, which doubtless jarred the boarding party and of the "crew" who acted as an ammunition hoist, and of the gun's crew, who all did very well under rifle and small gun fire at a range of about ten yards, but she never says what she really said about the motors.

Now we will take the E-14 on her various work either alone or as the flagship of the squadron composed of herself and Lieutenant-Commander Nasmith's boat, the E-11.

Here's was a busy midsummer and she became to be intimate with all sorts of craft, such as a two-funnelled gunboat of Bar Klow, fired at us and missed, "as usual," hospital ships going back and forth unmolested to Constantinople, the "gunboat which fired at me Sunday," and other old friends about and ashore.

When the crew of a Turkish brigantine, full of stores, got into their boats by request, then "all stood up and cursed us," the E-14 did not lose her temper. Even though it was too rough to lie alongside the abandoned ship, she told acting Lieutenant H. W. Lawrence, royal naval reserve, to swim off to her, which he did and after a cursory search came on to be expected to Sherlock Holmes for hours with nothing on—see fire to her with a load of her own matches and oil.

A SUDDEN EXPLOSION.

Then the E-14 had a brawl with a steamer with a yellow funnel, with a blue top and black band lying at her pier among the dhows. She never took a hand in the game with small guns and rifles and as the E-14 manoeuvred about the steamer "on the opposite" there was a sudden unaccountable explosion which strained her very badly.

"I think," she muses, "I must have caught those morsels of mine with my tail as I was turning and exploded it. It is possible it might have been a big shell bursting over us, but I think this was unlikely as we were thirty feet under at the time."

She was always a philosophical boat and anxious to arrive at the reason for the facts, and when the game is against her she admits it freely.

"There was a nondescript craft of a few hundred tons who, at a distance, did not look very warlike," but when chased suddenly displayed a couple of six-pounders and 'got off a dozen rounds at us before we could get under. Some of them hit only about twenty yards off." When the wily steamer, after sidling along the shore, lay up in front of a town, she became indistinguishable from the houses because we do not howestrafe open towns.

"Sailing dhows full of grain had to be destroyed. At one rendezvous, while waiting for the E-11, the E-14 dealt with three such cases. She then towed the crews to shore and gave them biscuits, beef, rum and water, as they were rather wet.

BURNS A SAILING SHIP.

"Next she changed billets with the E-11, who had the luck to pick up and put down a battleship close to Gallipoli. It turned out to be the Barbarossa.

"Meantime the E-14 got a 5,000-ton supply ship and later had to burn a sailing ship loaded with 200 bales of leaf cut tobacco—Turkish tobacco, and, small wonder, the E-11 came alongside in the afternoon and remained for an hour, probably making cigarettes.

Then the E-14 went back to her base. She had a hellish time among the Dardanelles mines, as, of course, fired at by the fortresses, just missed a torpedo from the beach, scraped a mine and, when she had time to investigate, found that the electric line wires were twisted around her propellors and all her hull was scraped and scarred, wire rope marks, but that again was only in the day's work.

The point she insisted upon was that she had been for seventy days in the Sea of Marmora with no secure base for a refit, the centre of the same, and during all this while she had not "had an engine room defect which was not put right by the engine room staff on the boat."

SEVENTY DAYS OF RISK.

The commander and the third officer went sick for a while, the first lieutenant got gastric enteritis and was in bed—he could say it was in bed—for the remainder of the stay in the Sea of Marmora, but "this boat was never out of running order." Credit for this is ascribed to the excellence of "my chief engine room fortifier, James Hollier Hague, C. N. 227,715," whose name has been duly submitted to the authorities for your consideration for advancement to the rank of warrant officer."

Seventy days in every conceivable sort of risk within and without, in a boat which in all engine room—except where she in sickbay—twelve thousand miles covered since her last overhaul, and never out of running order, thanks to Mr. Hague! Such artists as he are the kind of artificers that commanders intrinsic to get hold of, each for his own boat and when tales are told in the trade, their names, like Abou ben Adhem's, lead all the rest.

ROSE PITONOF WEDS MAN SHE RESCUED

Miss Rose Pitonof, champion girl swimmer of New England and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eli Pitonof of No. 337 Bremen street, East Boston, will be married to Dr. Frederick J. Weens of Somerville, at the Congregation Adath Jeshurun, Roxbury, this evening.

Miss Pitonof first met the groom elect when she saved him from drowning at Marblehead two years ago. Miss Ida Pitonof, sister of the bride-elect, will be maid of honor, while Dr. George Kramer will be best man.

COULD NOT KEEP FOOD IN STOMACH

J. Lavoie of No. 236 Lexington St., Boston, Was in a Very Serious State.

In an interview yesterday, the Plant Juice Man said: "If people would only realize that 99 per cent. of the ills that human flesh is heir to are directly traceable to that much-abused organ, the stomach, and when the digestive organs are not properly performing the work which nature has assigned them, then nutrition which is absolutely essential to the recovery of other diseased parts will be lacking, and then can be no permanent relief. It usually begins with weakness, from a lack of vital activity in the secretory glands of the stomach, from a want of sufficient gastric juice; hence a remedy that will arouse these parts, stimulate them to action and infuse them with vitality, will remove the cause and the dreadful symptoms which denote stomach, kidney and liver trouble will vanish."

Plant Juice stimulates the secretory glands, attacks and destroys all poisons in the blood, corrects diseased conditions of the stomach, liver and kidneys and restores them to normal condition. This contention is verified daily by scores of local people in signed statements. Recently the testimonial was received from Mr. J. Lavoie, who resides at No. 236 Lexington street, and is a well-known travelling man of this city. He said:

"For years I suffered from stomach trouble, indigestion and dyspepsia. The doctor advised me to go to the hospital, where I was put under an X-Ray examination and was told that I had acute indigestion. I had severe headaches, no appetite and was in a miserable condition as I could not keep any food in my stomach at all. I heard about Plant Juice and have been using it for about two weeks and now can eat any kind of food, have no more aches or pains and am simply feeling fine. I am recommending Plant Juice to everyone, for it has cured me. I consider it the best money I have ever spent."

The Plant Juice Man is at the Drug Department of the Houghton & Dutton store, where he is daily meeting the local public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy.—Advertisement.

THAT WHICH I wrote
TO PUT in here
THIS DAY
LIES WAITING
FOR ANOTHER time,
AND WHAT I write
AND YOU now read
I FOUND
AT FRAMINGHAM,
I HEARD a band
AND WAITING
SAW A line of brown,
OF SOLDIER men
AND HEARD their feet
IN STEADY tramp
AND CHEERS
AND CLAPPING hands,
AND CROWDED through
TO OUTER line
AND STOOD,
AND WHERE I stood
A WOMAN was
WITH HANDKERCHIEF
PRESSED TO her face,
AND REDDENED eyes
THAT WATCHED the lines
TILL HALF had passed,
AND THEN he came,
AND HOW I knew
WAS THAT I heard
"MY BOY!"
AND THEN a sob,
AND WHICH he was
OF ALL the boys
I COULDN'T tell,
FOR ALL went by
WITH HEADS erect
AND EYES afront.
I ONLY knew
THAT HE had passed.
AND SHE had gone
AND LEFT me there
TILL SOMETHING in me
BADE ME go
AND JOIN the march

AS SHE had done,
AND REACHING her
I TOOK her arm
AND SO we marched
AND KEPT in step
TO SOLDIER band
UNTIL WE came
TO THE railroad,
THEY BARRED the way
OF ALL of us
EXCEPT HER boy
AND OTHER boys
THAT WENT with him.
AND THERE we stood,
AND LOOKING on
THROUGH A car window
SHE SAW her boy,
AND SAW him go,
AND THOUGH it is
I AM a man
AND HAVE no kin
IN SOLDIER ranks
I CRIED with her
AND PRAYED with her
THAT HE'D come back,
AND WHO he is
OR WHO she is
I DO not know.

I THANK you.

STOLEN JEWELS FOUND BURIED IN CELLAR

Providence, June 28.—The confession of a frightened bride led today, according to Detective Captain George H. Monahan, to the recovery of $2,500 worth of diamonds which were stolen in a Fall River lodging house yesterday morning from Malatia Frinan, a jewelry salesman of No. 392 Washington street, Boston.

The jewels were found, the captain said, buried in a corner of the dirt cellar of the home of Louis Feingold at No. 217 Public street. Feingold has a small jewelry store on West Minister street. He was held in The City Court today in $1,000 for trial on the charge of receiving stolen goods.

Malatia lodged over Monday night at No. 337 Washington street, Fall River. While at breakfast yesterday morning the diamonds, uncut stones, were stolen from his room. Then he was warned that James J. Mcclone, occupying the room next to Malatia's, had just gone to Providence. Mcclone, who was arrested on his return to Fall River, admitted, the police say, that he had been to Feingold's.

Feingold denied knowing anything about McClone or diamonds. Captain Monahan went to Feingold's house, where he found a girl who said she was Mcclone's bride, married only five months ago at Taverton. She admitted, Captain Monahan said, that her husband brought jewels from Fall River to Feingold's store. Mcclone was brought by auto from Fall River and was confronted with his wife and Feingold.

At 4 a. m. Mcclone and Feingold broke down, the police said, and told them that they would find the diamonds buried in the cellar, which they did.

MANY BABIES ON MERCY SHIP CRUISE

The Boston Floating Hospital started its season at 9 o'clock today, when it took a large number of sick babies down the harbor. On board was a corps of seventy-three nurses to take care of the little ones. Miss Sarah A. Eagan was in charge of the nurses. Miss Jessie Hines directing the night nurses, and Miss Mary A. Heitmann the day nurses. Miss Grace L. Reid is instructor. Dr Henry I. Bowditch is head of the doctors who make up the medical and surgical staff of the boat.

G. Loring Briggs, superintendent of the hospital, said: "The Boston AMERICAN has always been very kind to us, and we appreciate it. It is hard work to start off a hospital of this kind each year, and have it filled. We have always managed, however, to have a large number of babies on board the first trip. We still have room for more sick babies, and we wish to put the hospital to its fullest use."

The hospital will return to its pier in North End Park at 7 o'clock tonight, and then will put out into the stream and anchor for the night with another load of babies.

Braves Back Off Road ... Tyler to Face Leaders

By JOHN W. MORAN, JR.

With a record of seven games won in the last nine played the Braves arrived in town shortly after 7 o'clock this morning to open a series against the Brooklyn club, league leaders.

After four games with the Robins the locals tackle the Phillies in a short series and then start on their second swing round the Western end of the Tener circuit.

Chances could favor Stallings' making use of George Tyler in the game today, though it would not be at all surprising if Dick Rudolph, who has been inactive since Cincinnati was here, was on the mound. In the last game with the finis Rudy took a liner off Tom Clarke's bat on his right hand. The result was an exceedingly painful bruise.

As a result of the Braves' splendid showing during the brief trip to New York and Philadelphia, followers of the team are inclined to take heart and believe that after all their pets are coming through. Any team that handles the Giants and Phillies in the manner the Miracle Men have during the past week and a half is certainly entitled to some consideration.

Starting with the last game against Pittsburg, that it would be hard to get the Pirates down hitless and runless, the calibre of pitching the Braves' staff has furnished has been the best in years. Not even excepting the wonderful performances of James, Rudolph and Tyler in 1914 has the Boston club had such fine twirling as that which the local staff is giving at the present minute.

As yet the Braves haven't really started to circle the ball as hard as some would like to have them. However, they are making the hits they get count, and, in their recent games, have had a minimum of men left on bases. The few hits at the proper time, coupled with clean-cut fielding and airtight pitching, has been sufficient to put them right up in the race for the National League pennant.

In the Brooklyn pitching corps the Braves face some opposition which is quite apt to prove baffling to them. Brooklyn's pitchers, headed by Jeff Pfeffer, "Whitenet" Dell, Larry Cheney, Sherrod Smith and Jack Coombs, are going along at a pretty smooth clip. Then, with Rube Marquard, Nap Rucker and young Mails to kick in with a good game once in a while, Robinson is pretty well fortified.

Jake Daubert is topping the bitters in the National League and the other members of the Brooklyn team are clouting the old apple in a pretty classy manner. The series between the league leaders and the one team which was universally picked to land the pennant should be a corker from start to finish.

On a guess, Jack Coombs is picked to hurl for the Dodgers in this afternoon's game, though Larry Cheney might draw the assignment.

The Brooklyn bunch arrived in town brimful of confidence and went at once to their hotel. Manager Robinson wasn't saying a thing about his team's chances.

COLLAMORE STAYS WITH CLEVELANDS

Cincinnati, June 28.—The National Baseball Commission has decided that Pitcher A. E. Collamore belongs to the Cleveland American League Club, which is required to give him employment, dispose of his services or release him outright. The Cleveland club contended that it had sold him to the Toledo Club of the American Association outright.

The commission held that the evidence showed that he was released to Toledo on trial and that Toledo returned the player to Cleveland within the specified time.

NEW FLYCHASER FOR CAL

Chicago, June 28.—Outfielder Pat O'Brien of the Davenport (Three-Eye League) club, reported to Manager Callahan of the Pirates in time to play in yesterday's matinee with the Cubs. He comes into the big arena pictured as a hard hitter. The Pirates have given Wilbur Fisher, a West Virginia collegian, his unconditional release.

BIG THREE RACE AT BEACH

Walthour, Wiley and Didier Ready for 25-Mile Grind Tonight—Herbert vs. Turville.

TONIGHT'S REVERE CARD.

25-Mile Motor Paced Race—Starters: George Wiley, Syracuse, N. Y.; Leon Didier, Paris, France; Bobby Walthour, Atlanta, Ga.

10-Mile Motor-Paced Match Race—Fred Herbert, Fall River, vs. "Pinkie" Turville, Revere.

Amateur and professional races. Starting time—8:15 p. m.

Unquestionably one of the most attractive cards ever arranged for the Revere cycle track will be presented at the seaside oval tonight.

George Wiley, Leon Didier and Bobby Walthour will clash in a 25-mile motor-paced race, while the other contestants behind the motors will be a ten-mile match race, with Fred Herbert, a budding star in every sense of the word, opposing "Pinkie" Turville, one of the most promising pace-followers ever developed at the beach.

Herbert and Turville will start from opposite sides of the track and will be allowed a mile for repairs in case of any accident to their wheels or motors.

The big paced race is a toss-up. Many are inclined to favor Walthour because of the veteran's exceptionally fine showing at the beach oval last Saturday night. Others favor Leon Didier, while still others cling to game little Wiley, one of the fastest men in the game, either at short or long-distance racing.

Amateur and professional open and handicap races will be run off in between the two big events.

Moran-Dillon Go Will Be Run by Western Man

New York, June 28.—Because the managers of Frank Moran and Jack Dillon and the promoters of the bout at Washington Park, Brooklyn, tomorrow night, could not settle on a local man to serve as referee, Chairman Wenck of the Boxing Commission today announced the appointment of Matt Hinkel of Cleveland.

While it is admitted that Hinkel is a thoroughly competent official, some criticism was heard over the appointment. Why it was necessary to go to the Middle West for a referee seemed a mystery to the local men who have officiated in New York since the Frawley law became operative.

Billy Gibson, who a few days ago demanded that the boxing solons compel the Washington Park promoters to stage the bout between Benny Leonard and Freddie Welsh, failed to appear at the commission office when the case was called.

SOCCER SHOTS

CHANGING from neutral umpires to each club furnishing their own has not to date proven very satisfactory, as Beverly Blues playing at home last Saturday could not furnish one until the second half of the game.

* * *

FANS are asking what's the matter with Ira Wurst, the old reliable bowler. To date he has done very little for Hrockton, both in bowling or batting. He will yet be heard from, however, perhaps when he is needed most.

* * *

MEYERS, last year's champion bowler of the Standards, has evidently not struck his pace yet. His side partner, Quarles, however, is keeping the team well up in the race and with both going well at the same time some records will be broken.

* * *

ST. GEORGES in some manner and it pretty hard to get away. This club has gotten together one of the best teams in its history. Nevertheless a victory seems impossible. In four games played which resulted in as many defeats they have scored a little over 100 runs.

* * *

CHARLESTOWN F. C. winner of the Williamson cup, fell down in the reinforced Trinos on Saturday in a charity game for the Thornton cup. The game ended 1 to 1 tie and will necessitate a replay.

Frank Fox Lands Rich Stake at Hillsgrove

Providence, June 28.—Patrons of Short Ship circuit turned out in force for the opening day's sport at the Hillsgrove track. The card was cleaned up, but not until fifteen heats had been decided. Fast miles, close finishes and surprises galore ruled throughout.

Surprise No. 1 was the handsome victory of Miss Elmarch, admirably handled by the veteran Frank Fox, in the Narragansett Brewery Trotting Stake, worth $500, for 2:22 trotters. Dolly Dixon, Sir Todd and Orchard Direct were heat winners, but Miss Elmarch trotted her competitors into the ground in the sixth and final heat.

Burton Marion, winner of the 2:12 pace, was another that dropped from the clouds, romping home in straight heats in good time. The winner was purchased last Fall at the Broomsocket meeting for a mere song by Joseph Bodoc, who drove his charge.

After May Bird annexed the first two heats in fast time, Harry Brusie turned Husky Dan's head home and came home in front in the next two heats. Husky Dan "broke" during the running of the fifth heat, and it went to Birdie Alayo after a hot finish with May Bird, but Brusie reigned supreme in the sixth and final heat.

The card for today is an attractive one. It includes the Crown Hotel Stake, $500, for 2:25 pacers; 2:16 trot and 2:13 pace. The stake brings together Baron Strathmore, Battle King, Binger, Crescent Todd, Down Patrick, Eva Dare, My Colonel, Rebino, Miss Lacondra and Tony Direct.

Bert Merrill's work in getting the fields away is on a par with his excellent performance at Woonsocket.

ENGLISH HORSES IN IRISH DERBY

London, June 28.—Followers of horseracing have a splendid program before them this week. Today the Irish Derby will be run off over the famous Curragh course. A number of English horses are entered for this classic.

On Friday at Newbury the Hunt Cup Handicap of $5,000 and the Newbury Summer Cup of $2,500 will be decided. Thirty-three horses have been entered for the former, while the Summer Cup has attracted thirty-eight, including some Derby starters.

RING REMARKS

New York has it that Jack Britton, the welterweight champion, who was to have gone on with Joe Welling, the Chicago boxer, at the Arena last night, notified the Armory A. A. management Monday night he was on the sick list and wasn't coming.

So that as it may the Triple-A management did not give out notice of Britton's cancellation until late Tuesday afternoon. The ICAN secured the information in time to tell the howling fans of Britton's illness, withdrawal, or whatever it was, in its late edition. Reno, kept humming, thus from making a useless trip to the Arena.

Report has it the Armory A. A. matchmaker offered the match to Walter Ruhlin among others, after hard to put on something. But he failed to get his signed for the bout. He eventually had to cover out the club would so darkly. It appears as if the Triple-A management had "twenty-four hours' notice Britton wasn't going on. Had there been a show at the Arena last night it would have had a substitute gloveman on its show window number. So it's just as well the St. Botolph street casino was dark.

The Frank Moran-Jack Dillon affair, which takes place in Brooklyn tomorrow night, is causing only a fair amount of attention at best. The house must be a whopper for the promoters to make a profit, as the guarantees are quite hefty.

The bulk of New Yorkers appear to have it sized up as a "freak" match and as such don't appear overly anxious to go up against the high scale of prices arranged by the management. It's a fairly good big man against a good little man; a set-to between batters at different classes.

The clever, crafty ringstar of the two is Dillon, "the little fellow." Jack may come in as high as 172 or 175. As for Moran, he's always at the 190-pound notch. So there is bound to be a difference of thirty-five pounds at least between the two fighters. Dillon has it on Moran in everything but bulk. The Indianapolis entrant is really the class of the show, but there's such a big discrepancy in the weight question it looks as if Frank will only win unless, of course, he's absolutely off color. Moran and Dillon have had two battles last Winter with Jim Coffey, he was efficient enough both times to finally get over the kayo.

New York reports the betting standing practically at the even notch. That about Dillon is figured to be right there with his big opponent, and the only way he can be figured to have a chance is because he knows more and is almost bound to whip the faster. Should there be a knockout, Moran should deliver it. If the winner is to go over on a rounds of thirty minutes of superior boxing and better milling, it should be Dillon who is proclaimed the winner by the bulk of the New York writers.

Matchmaker Georges Freeman of the Commercial A. C. swears by all that is holy Friday night's card will go as booked. The results in the main event, rather, booked to be in it, are Howard McRae and Al (Young) Delmont.

The rest of the card, as booked, follows: Jim McDonald vs. Jack Moore, 8 rounds. Ben Bailey vs. Pat Owens, 6 rounds, and "Red" Kelly vs. Young Algee, 6 rounds.

Sox Oppose Senators ... Shore Faces Johnson

Washington, June 28.—Manager Bill Carrigan led his champs into this city of excitement and war scares bright and early this morning for a series with the Senators. In the open clash today indications are that Carrigan will send Ernie Shore out to oppose Walter Johnson, who seems to be the choice of Clark Griffith.

The Sox are but little better off than the Senators in the point standing Johnson's circuit at the present writing. It would not be the least bit surprising if either one of the two teams cleaned up. Both are going along fine at the present time. The Griffmen will have the advantage of being at home and of being used to the hot weather which prevails here.

FINE WEATHER.

This welcome change of temperature should prove satisfactory to the Sox, who have been enjoying some warm weather during the past few days only. Here the weather is much hotter than any the Boston bunch has yet encountered and a fine opportunity is provided for removing kinks from sore arms. Carrigan's bunch includes every man on the club but save Chick Shorten, who is not as yet in the best of health and who was left behind.

J. Weldon Wyckoff, the hurler whom the Sox purchased from Connie Mack after the last game with the A's yesterday, did not come into Washington with the team today. He had a few business affairs to settle up in Philadelphia and was allowed to attend to them by Manager Carrigan. He will join the team before the series here ends.

Griffith's team is in fine shape for this series, and as the pennant bee is buzzing in their bonnets fans can rest assured they will give the Red Sox something to do before the series closes. Nick Altrock is still with the team, but just how long he will remain is an uncertainty. Nick has some decided ideas about war with Mexico and may want to put them into effect.

Tellier Turns in Second Low in Open Tourney

Minneapolis, June 28.—Alex. Campbell, the Baltimore professional, led the field in the first flight of the qualifying round for the national open championship title at the Minneakada Club. Campbell's score in the morning was 71, one below par, and he had a 73 for the afternoon.

Louis Tellier, the French champion, now of Boston, was second with 145. Tellier equaled the course record of 70 in the morning, but took 75 for the eighteen holes in the afternoon.

Mike Brady, Boston, turned in a card of 150, while Carl Anderson, Boston, got a 151.

TWO COLLEGE BOYS LANDED BY M'GRAW

New York, June 28.—Secretary John B. Foster of the Giants announces that "Pie" Way of Yale and George Smith of Columbia, both pitchers, have reported to Manager McGraw. Way was the Elis' star boxman for three years and also a great football player. Smith, who has pitched four years for Columbia, graduated last month.

SIDELIGHTS

BY HERMAN NICKERSON

SIX won and two lost is a pretty good home stay record for the champions.

* * *

THE champions are now away until July 6. The Braves return today for two series, the first with Brooklyn.

* * *

RUTH passed two men and hit one in the first inning and they hit him for two, but Babe retired all three men on strikes, which was some inning.

* * *

CARROLL of Tufts and Holy Cross was placed behind the bat for the Athletics.

* * *

WITT made a fine showing in the series here. He got a stop on Gardner that was a wonder. It went for a hit, but few shortstops would have reached it.

* * *

LAJOIE got a one-hand, back-hand at that, stab of a liner from Hoffman that showed good ground covering.

* * *

WITT, Lajoie and McInnis pulled two clever double plays that cut off chances.

* * *

"TILLY" WALKER made a great try for Schang's bit in the fifth, just missing it as he ran up on the centrefield bank.

* * *

WALSH took advantage of Ruth's long wind-up and stole third in the sixth inning with two out, but Ruth fanned Johnson, who made the seventh "fan" of the game.

* * *

GARDNER got three hits in four times up, McNally hit safely twice and Lewis doubled in the sixth, scoring later.

* * *

RUTH struck out ten and passed four, two of these walks being in the opening inning, when the Athletics got their only runs.

* * *

WYCKOFF left for Philadelphia last night to clean up his affairs there, but will join the team in Washington, having been secured by President Lannin from the Athletics, the purchase taking place after the game.

* * *

THE Athletics' series helped the champions in their effort to get to the top.

ALL the Boston players were taken on the trip with the exception of Shotten.

Weldon Wyckoff, Bought by Lannin, Reports at Once

WELDON WYCKOFF, Connie Mack's winning pitcher in 1925, even if he only won 10 of his thirty games, has been bought by President Lannin of the Red Sox and is down to report to Manager Carrigan in Washington today or tomorrow.

Wyckoff appeared in bits of the last two games the Macks played at Fenway Park this trip. He was hard to hit, but was bothered by his old trouble—wildness.

Wyckoff is a Bucknell College boy. He joined the Athletics late in the 1921 season and made good from the start.

Moran 5-4 Choice in Big Battle With Dillon

By FRANKE G. MENKE.

New York, June 28.—Many rag experts believe that Frank Moran will whoop Jack Dillon in their ten-round bout in Brooklyn tomorrow night (weather permitting).

The betting today was 5 to 4 on Moran to win. Moranites have offered 2 to 1 that the Pittsburgher will knock out Dillon, but there isn't a superfluity of Dillon takers. Odds of 5 to 4 that Dillon won't knock out Moran are going begging.

Dillon is faster than Moran and slifter. But Moran's physical advantages are so great that the Pittsburgher Dillon supporters seem confident that the "Giant Killer can overcome them sufficiently to win the verdict.

Dillon on the eve of the fracas said:

"I'm going to go mug with Moran—and I'll be [illegible] his own game. I never let anyone from any man—and I won't start with Moran.

Moran today sent a little measure from Wilkesbarre, Pa., where he is training with Mike Ary [illegible] Mr. Moran's glove [illegible] Mr. Ann does [illegible] threats to knock him out.

BUMNUTT BROS COMEDIANS

STOCKS AND INVESTMENTS

By W. H. ROSS, Financial Editor

Stocks were still rising higher in New York at 12 o'clock, but were below their highest for the morning. During the noon hour there was a recession of U. S. Steel bought in large blocks during the first hour, but lost all its gain and was showing a fractional loss. Studebaker, which moved up more than two points, was more than two points below yesterday's closing price. Maxwell was off more than a point, and among other fairly weak issues were Crucible, Baldwin, American Smelting, American Can and Beet Sugar. Industrial Alcohol had declined more than three points. Mexican Petroleum sold five points below its opening figure and has started at a point decline. Later it rallied and showed a gain. Colorado Fuel did not respond to the dividend declaration of 2½ a share on account of accumulated dividends on its preferred stock. The market was dull all the morning and not active on the selling movement. Toward afternoon trend developed in the second hour.

By the end of the first hour the Boston list was firm and most issues higher, but prices eased off here when they began to decline in New York.

Gains at 12 o'clock included New Haven 3, Atlantic Gulf and West Indies common, U. S. Smelting 5, Copper Range 4, North Butte 3, Tamarack 4.

Among declines were Boston Elevated 1, Calumet & Arizona 1¼, Mohawk ¾, and St. Mary 1.

Prices ruled a little higher in New York at the opening, and then improved at once. Within a few minutes a number of issues were up a point or more, including Tamarack, Colorado Fuel and Union Pacific. Mexican Petroleum had recovered part of its early loss. Liquidation appeared to be over. There was more disposition to cover shorts. Sentiment was more cheerful in regard to the Mexican situation. There is little fear that war will hurt business. Most people think it will benefit trade in many lines. The supply of stocks is not abundant, as bear raiding has been discovered. Steadiness of standard issues under selling pressure has inspired confidence.

The Boston market was exceedingly dull at the start, and without interesting feature. Gulf common was less active than in the forenoon. Trade was quiet. Traders showed no initiative.

Motor Notes.

B. J. C. KERRISON.

L. J. Ollier, vice-president and director of sales of the Studebaker Corporation, who is visiting Colonel B. Biggs of Frank Seeman Incorporated, and C. P. O'Meara, efficiency expert of the Studebaker Corporation, arrived in Boston yesterday and spent considerable time in going over the New England affairs with New England Manager George N. Jordan and the Studebaker men in this district.

Mr. Ollier is recognized as one of the biggest men in the industry and what he has done much towards placing Studebaker in the front rank of the automobile world.

Mr. Biggs and Mr. O'Meara are likewise leaders in their respective fields, and together with Mr. Ollier had made a visit through the Middle West and Eastern territory. Nowhere have they found business any better than is in evidence in New England, and all have expressed the opinion that the prosperity of the country will not in any way be affected by the Mexican situation, and that the United States will maintain the present position in the commercial world.

Charles E. Fay, branch manager of the Ford Motor Company, starts today for Detroit where he will attend a branch managers' meeting at Ford headquarters.

* * *

Frank L. Brown of the Brown-Apperson Motor Company returned yesterday from a somewhat extended trip through the Middle West. He reports that everything is good business shape. He personally make an interesting announcement.

Procure Peace in Europe and Compel Peace in Mexico

THE PRESBYTERIAN HOSPITAL
70TH ST. and MADISON AVE.
New York, June 27, 1916.

To the Editor of The American:

I see that President Wilson has rejected the proposal of the South American nations to mediate in the matter of Mexico.

Please make an editorial enthusiastically commending him and congratulating the country.

This is the first ray of light, the first rainbow of hope for a new era.

We can safely assume that the country is about to enter into a more honorable and suitable state and stage than it has occupied since the fat and fatuous Republican President, Taft, plunged the nation into a career of timidity and obloquy, indignity and apology in Mexico.

A jelly-fish can hardly be expected to have a backbone, but President Wilson looks like a vertebrate, and perhaps events at last are about to prove that he is one.

What possible opportunity is there for mediation by the South American nations in regard to Mexico?

Can the United States submit to mediation or arbitration the question whether Mexicans have the right to murder American men and outrage American women as we have patiently permitted them to do for four protracted years?

Can the United States submit to mediation or arbitration the question whether Mexicans have the right to invade American territory without reason, and on our own soil kill American soldiers and citizens without provocation and without justification?

Can we submit to mediation or arbitration the question whether Mexicans have the right, after permitting our troops to enter Mexico in pursuit of bandits, to ambush our soldiers treacherously and slay them cruelly without cause?

Can we submit to mediation or arbitration whether or not the United States is an independent nation with the rights of a nation and the respect due a nation, and with the fundamental duty of a nation to protect its people from insult and injury?

A man cannot arbitrate whether his son shall be murdered and his wife and daughter subjected to outrage, nor can a nation arbitrate such questions, and every patriotic citizen must feel glad that President Wilson is man enough and American enough to know it.

President Wilson has been slow to recognize the fearful conditions prevailing in Mexico.

He has been unjust enough to call those well-informed and well-meaning people "liars" who sought to tell him the truth about those dreadful conditions.

Now at last he has come to recognize the full significance of all these horrifying facts, and now at last let us hope that, after having firmly set himself to remedying the hideous conditions of savagery and butchery which exist in Mexico, he will not turn back until this great work in the interest of humanity and civilization is completely accomplished.

President Wilson probably has not that iron jaw of his for any relenting, retreating or relinquishing purpose.

President Wilson has two great opportunities to secure immeasurable fame for himself and benefit for others—by procuring peace in Europe and by compelling peace in Mexico.

Let us all hope that the President of our United States will be equal to both these wonderful opportunities, will accomplish both of these splendid achievements for the greater glory of our country and the added advantages of our people throughout the world.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

The United States Cannot Submit Its Duty in Mexico to Arbitration

MR. HEARST sets a task and then performs it.

Practically, the subject is thoroughly handled in his letter of instruction. So this writer can only elaborate.

At this moment we are most deeply impressed with the statement that President Wilson has two great opportunities to secure immeasurable fame for himself and benefit for others by procuring peace in Europe and by compelling peace in Mexico.

We think that that is at once a correct statement of the President's opportunities and duty, and the convincing reply to the well-meaning South American diplomats and the miserable little Americans who are appealing by letters, telegrams and printed advertisements for non-intervention in Mexico.

Whether the President of the United States can procure peace in Europe or not, only his tender of mediatory offices can tell. We think that such an offer would end the dreadful struggle across the seas. At least, the trial should be made.

But about Mexico there is no shadow of doubt.

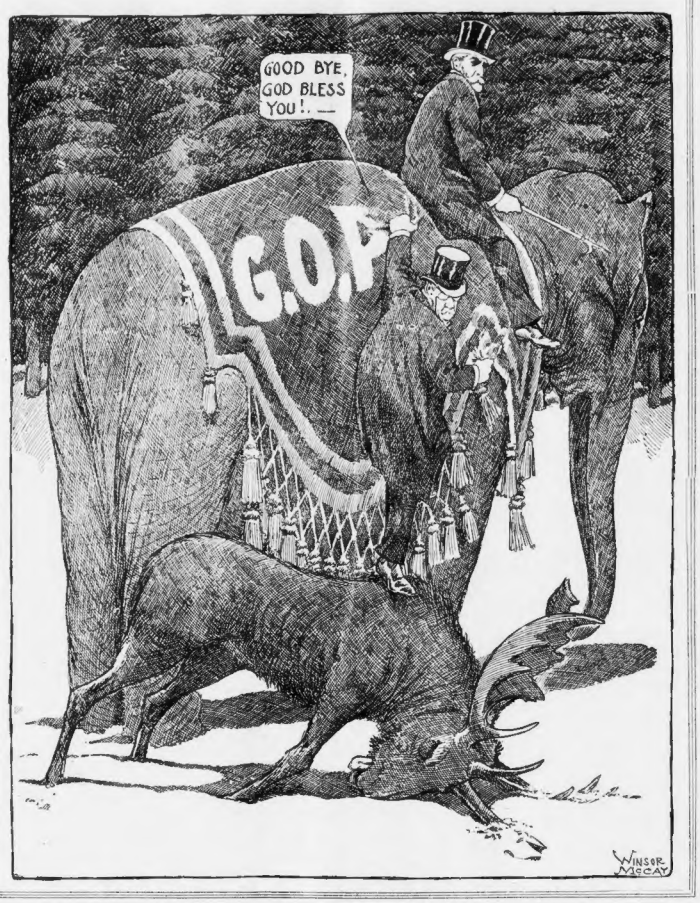
The President of the United States CAN compel peace in Mexico.

There will be no peace in Mexico until the President of the United States DOES compel it.

Therefore the President of the United States OUGHT to compel peace down there.

SAFETY FIRST!

Copyright, 1916, by International News Service.



The little Americans who talk as if the rest of us wanted to make war in Mexico are simply dunces.

There is NOTHING BUT WAR in Mexico at this very moment.

There has been nothing but war in Mexico for over four years—four wretched, hideous, bloody, savage, horrible years.

The task ahead of us in Mexico is purely a police task.

Our troops will go there not to destroy but to save, not to disturb the peace but to restore the peace, not to conquer and enslave the people but to rescue and free the people.

The whole of Mexico is seething with riot, rapine, robbery, murder and outrage. No man's property is safe, no man's life is safe, no woman's person is safe.

And yet we have men and women and organizations and even newspapers which are so devoid of common sense—yes, and of common humanity—that they urge their countrymen not to interfere by force to end these horrible conditions!

How is it that such persons cannot see that in this case force is a blessing, bayonets the instruments of mercy and what bloodshed there may be a noble sacrifice upon the altars of peace and goodwill?

We make now no appeal to the natural and justifiable and becoming horror and indignation with which all upstanding American men and women have seen the violation of our rights, the dishonoring of our flag, the rejection of our good offices, the murder of our kindred.

We should have and we should most richly deserve the scorn of the world if we had not manhood enough to resent with arms these abominable insults and crimes. And we would be lower than ours if we submitted these national wrongs to the arbitration of any other people.

But aside from these self-evident truths, our duty anyhow is to compel order and to restore peace and security to Mexico.

That is the task laid upon our shoulders, because there are no other shoulders to bear it and because HUMANITY demands that the task be performed.

We have tried patience and forbearance, and they have failed.

We have tried counsel and advice, and they have failed.

We have tried warnings and threats, and they have failed.

It is plain to all the world that the only means now left to us by which we can restore peace and order in Mexico is FORCE.

And in the very nature of the case arbitration is impossible, since we ourselves have been trying to arbitrate the quarrels and wars of these Mexican guerrillas for more than three years and have made a total failure of the effort.

And if the United States has failed in its attempts to arbitrate its own differences with Mexico and in its attempts to arbitrate and compose the internal quarrels of Mexico, how could these weaker and more distant South American republics have any influence in the way of arbitration?

The fundamental objection to arbitration by any Power is, of course, that the questions at issue between us and the Mexican de facto Government do not permit of arbitration.

But another powerful objection is that there can be no dependence upon the faith or word of Carranza or any other Mexican leader.

Arbitration presupposes honorable submission to the awards of the arbitrators—and Carranza has repeatedly dishonorably refused to abide by his own pledges given to us as arbitrators between him and his enemies.

There is nothing that can be arbitrated.

There is nobody in Mexico with whom we can arbitrate.

There is a condition of war now in Mexico. That condition can be ended only by our armed intervention.

And as that condition is as inimical to our rights and peace as it is to the rights and peace of the Mexican people, we are bound in self-interest and in honor and in duty to use all the force necessary to end that condition.

There is no other course open to us.

Our duty is as plain as daylight.

Let us go resolutely forward to perform that duty.

Our ships of war and our soldiers should be at this very moment carrying the blessing of American occupation and of law and liberty under American control to the distressed, harassed and cruelly outraged and oppressed people of Mexico.

Give the order, Mr. Wilson, for our eagles to advance!

Sir Isaac Newton on a Subway Train

He Would Have Been as Delighted as a Boy Over the Opportunities There Offered Him for Practical Studies of the Laws of Motion.

By Garrett P. Serviss

"IN a subway train I got up to walk to the rear entrance, as the train was slowing down for a stop, and it was just like struggling up a steep, rocky hill. I nearly fell over backward. I suppose there is a scientific explanation for this, so please tell me what it is."—Stranger.

If some modern physicists are right in their reasonings you were struggling against the mutable demon called Electricity in his most mysterious form. What pushed you backward was the fundamental thing of the physical world—inertia—and inertia, ordinarily defined simply as resistance to motion, or to change of motion, is, according to the mathematico-physical philosophers just referred to, an electro-magnetic phenomenon.

But, putting aside all these speculations, which sometimes smack too much of metaphysics, we can find a perfectly clear explanation by considering inertia according to its plain, common-sense definition, as that quality of matter on account of which it requires force to change its condition of rest or motion.

If you stand erect in a subway train when it suddenly starts you will be flung backward, because your body, by virtue of the property of inertia (which is a kind of protest against interference, and the very type of conservatism), refuses to obey like a slave the command of the autocratic motorman to jump ahead. It proposes to itself, on the contrary, to stay as it is. But, being connected to the floor of the train by its feet, its lower portion is carried violently ahead, while the upper portion, still protesting and reluctant, and struggling to maintain its position in space, finds its support swept away from beneath by the forward motion, and, accordingly, falls over backward.

In other words, the inertia of the feet is overcome more rapidly than that of the body because they are more directly affected by the movement of the train. Friction holds them fast to the floor, and they have to start at once.

If, instead of being shaped like a long cylinder, standing on end, your body had the form of a cube, which is not easily upset, its entire inertia would act simultaneously to resist movement, and you would slide backward on the floor until the resistance had been overcome.

Now, take the case of which you speak, in which your body, having acquired a forward movement equal to that of the train, has changed its inertia of rest for inertia of motion. The nature of the inertia is the same in both cases; it is simply pure conservatism, or resistance to change.

Having been compelled to set itself going, your body now clings obstinately to the new state of things, and resents any effort either to stop its motion, or to vary its rate of moving. As long as the train is moving steadily at a fixed speed you can rise and comfortably walk forward or backward, as you choose, because your movements inside the train are independent of the train's own motion. You are sharing that motion of the train, just as you would be sharing its state of rest if it were standing still, and so either case your walking about the floor is unimpeded.

But, when you rise from your seat at the moment when the train is slowing down for a stop, you encounter again the effects of a change of state resisted by inertia. Your whole body is moving forward with the common motion of the train and all its contents, and is resisting the force, applied through the train brakes, which tends to stop this motion.

If, at this instant, you erect your body upon the feet, the latter, being more promptly affected by the retardation of the train, lose the forward motion quicker than the upper part of the body does, and you pitch ahead in the direction of the original movement. In trying, in such circumstances, to walk toward the rear of the train you have to overcome first the difference of momentum between your body and your feet, and must lean forward, just as you have expressed it, like a person climbing a steep hill. In fact, it is, potentially, a hill that you are climbing, and its slope is determined by the inclination that you have to give to your body from a perpendicular to the floor.

On the other hand, if you attempt to walk toward the front of the car when the train is slowing down, you must hurry your feet to catch up with the upper end of your body, and you will seem to be going down hill and have to lean backward. Two men meeting in such a case will both lean in the same direction, though walking in opposite directions, just as if one were climbing and the other descending a hill.

All these things are of the highest possible interest to a thoughtful person, inspired with intelligent curiosity concerning the causes of the phenomena amid which we live, and one cannot but picture to himself the delight which Newton would have experienced if he could have enjoyed the advantages which a subway train, in the hands of a motorman just learning his business, affords for practical study of the laws of motion which the great Englishman formulated.

The cases with which we have been dealing fall under Newton's "First Law," which reads: "Every body perseveres in its state of rest, or of moving uniformly in a straight line, except in so far as it is made to change that state by external forces."

The Shepherdess

By Jane McLean

IT was a little shepherdess with straying windblown hair,
Whose pagan little heart was glad because the day was fair.
Who laughed because she was so young and had not met dull Care.

It was a little shepherdess who watched a thousand sheep,
Each one a dear and sacred trust for her small hands to keep,
Because they were her joys and she was never known to weep.

Her dearest joy she carried close against her own warm breast,
He was so young, this newest joy, and so she loved him best;
His name was Love, and he was dearer far than all the rest.

It was a little shepherdess with laughing childish eyes,
Who chose love for her dearest joy and thought that she was wise;
She did not know that Love was cruel yet wore so fair a guise.

We Need Bigger Venus Crops

Harrison Fisher, the famous illustrator, explains in the next Boston Sunday AMERICAN the college girls' effort to attain classic figures. How Mrs. Venus de Milo would dress today.
